Seasons Change But Elmhurst Remains

A black and white photograph of a Native American headdress. It features a large, dark feathered plume on top of a mask. The mask has intricate carvings and decorative patterns, including circular motifs on the cheeks. The background is a light, textured surface.

School Means . . .

The Start of Things

"Hey! Goin' to the football game?"

"I don't know. I might have to work. Are you?"

"I sure am! We're predicted to be really good this year!"

Once again it's football season, and along with the football season goes school. Homework starts and many EHS students get into the old routine of school all day, then work, homework and rest. Day after day it's the same thing. Maybe that's why EHS students have the days till Christmas vacation numbered — the first week of school.

Did you call this lime? Foreign exchange student Anne Hunnemeyer samples a sucker on hat and sucker day.

... on three ! Mac MacKay, Jeff Kruse, Jim Folland and Steve Finken plan to "do some rearranging" after an evening at Pizza Hut.

Soy Cheese! Freshman Kathleen Heiney smiles widely while listening to some "tunes" through a headset.

Let's get ROWDIE! Julie Burt, Scott Stephen, Lori Auer and other members of the senior class show their enthusiasm at a pep session for the band.

Crisis Means . . .

Fort Wayne Fights Back

1982 was a year plagued by record snowfalls, tornadoes, and floods for the city of Fort Wayne. The most severe crisis for the town, however, came in October when the International Harvester Company announced plans to shut down its Summit City truck plant.

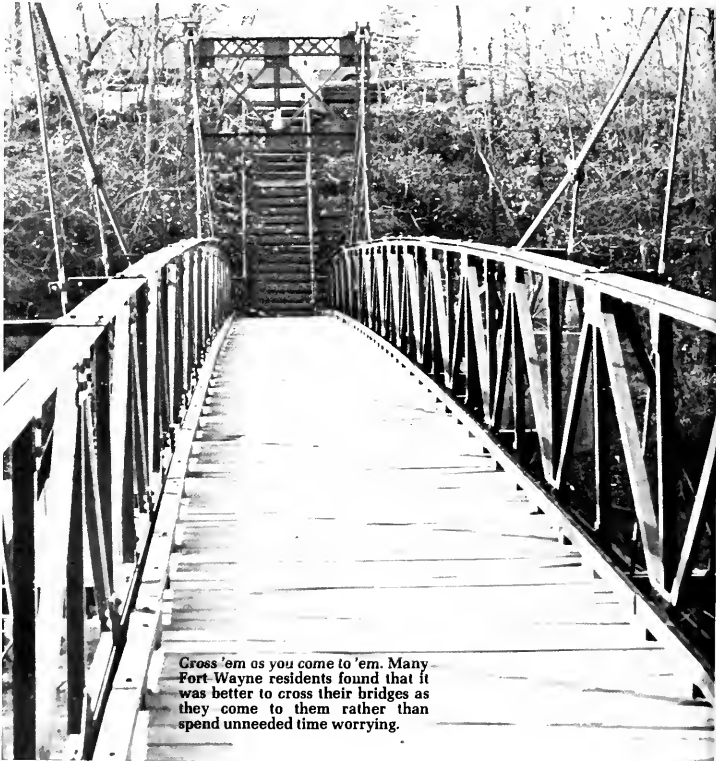

This decision came after weeks of negotiations on the part of big business, IH employees, and state officials in an effort to increase the financial situation of the local plant. Though Fort Wayne did end up outbidding Springfield, Ohio, IH decided there were other reasons to be considered and thus concluded to close our plant.

The announcement came as a shock and a threat to the community. With an unemployment rate already at 9.4% and another 2000 people soon to be added to the statistics, the future of Fort Wayne looked bleak. Many of those who lost their jobs left the town in search of employment elsewhere. Others remained, living on the measly sums of welfare and/or unemployment wages.

The future is still uncertain. When such a high rate of people are unemployed in a town, all other businesses, in fact the entire economy, are affected. But Fort Wayne is a city of survivors. The citizens saved their homes once, and the chances are they'll do it again. The revitalization of downtown has already begun, which, when completed, should have a positive effect on the economy. If the Fort Wayne people continue to support their city, the crises faced in 1982 will soon be a part of history and the future will be brighter and more prosperous.

What a time! As times in the Fort Wayne area got tougher, numerous people in the vicinity found it necessary to take advantage of the free cheese to the needy offered by the U.S. government.

Cross 'em as you come to 'em. Many Fort Wayne residents found that it was better to cross their bridges as they come to them rather than spend unneeded time worrying.

Line 'em up an' move 'em out! For some people the only hope the future holds is relocating in another city.

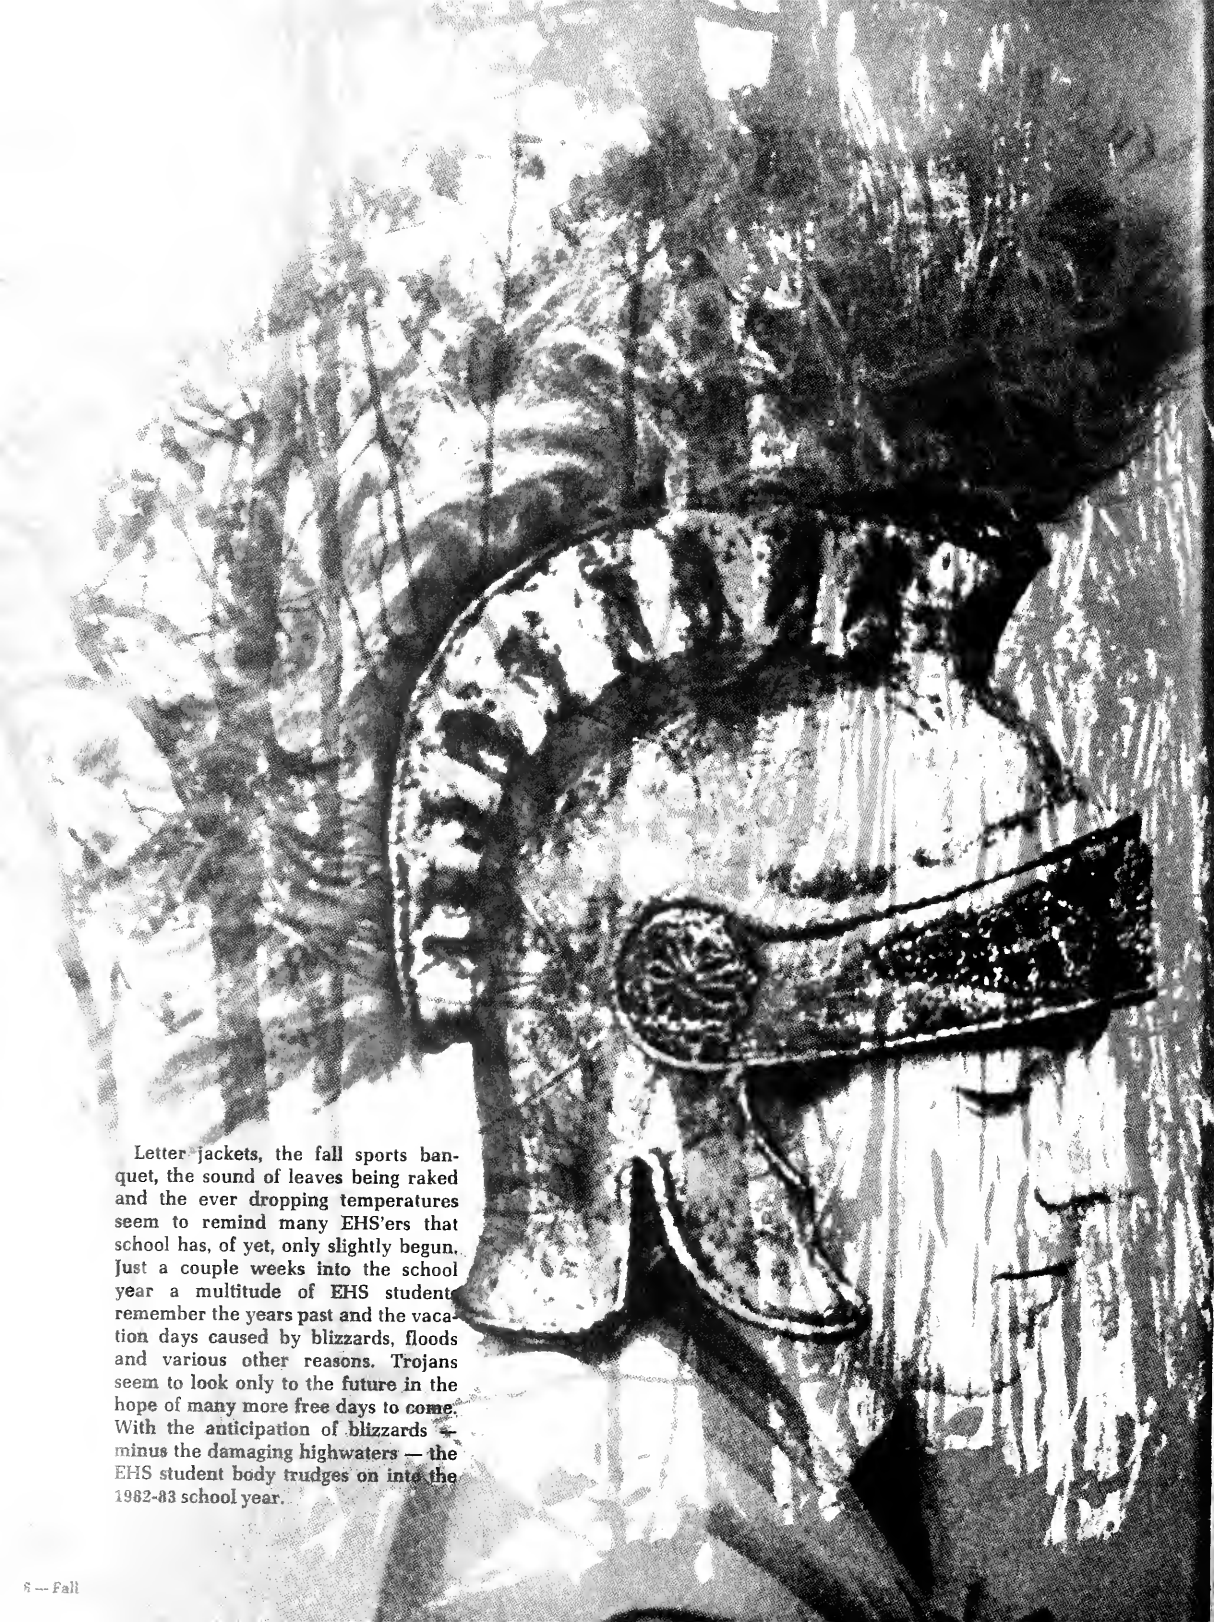

Still another line! Local inhabitants assemble at the unemployment office hoping for aid.

The assembly line. Volunteers from the Summit City help prepare food at the St. Mary's soup kitchen in downtown Fort Wayne.

Lining up in perch formation. Resident birds line up on the gutters of St. Mary's church in the expectation of receiving some leftovers from the soup kitchen.

Letter jackets, the fall sports banquet, the sound of leaves being raked and the ever dropping temperatures seem to remind many EHS'ers that school has, of yet, only slightly begun. Just a couple weeks into the school year a multitude of EHS students remember the years past and the vacation days caused by blizzards, floods and various other reasons. Trojans seem to look only to the future in the hope of many more free days to come. With the anticipation of blizzards — minus the damaging highwaters — the EHS student body trudges on into the 1982-83 school year.

Fall

Where'd my helmet go? After a year's fight with a War General, the helmet finally found its home.

Tell 'em girls. Members of the reserve and first aid squad help to get the stadium fire up before the football game with South Slus.

It's all part of the show. Senior powderpuffers exhibit some EHS pride before the powderpuff game by wearing their jerseys.

Quitting time! After a long day at school these students head toward their transportation home.

Recovering from a serious knee injury, senior Joe Birch sits in on the pep session.

Speeding around the gym are Mr. Erik Henry and Mrs. Holly Faulkner, Grand Marshals, and Mr. Richard Horstmeyer, principal.

Juniors Pat Bryan and Danny McLemore and senior Tracy Richardson show us the latest punk fashions on Punk Day.

Racing down the field is senior Pam Stewart.

Senior Kelley Camperman sneaks a peek at senior Jim Folland's sexy legs on PJ Day.

Leaving the platform are sophomores Mary Kohrman and Joel Vorndran, members of the homecoming court.

Trojans Have Spirit, Yes We Do!

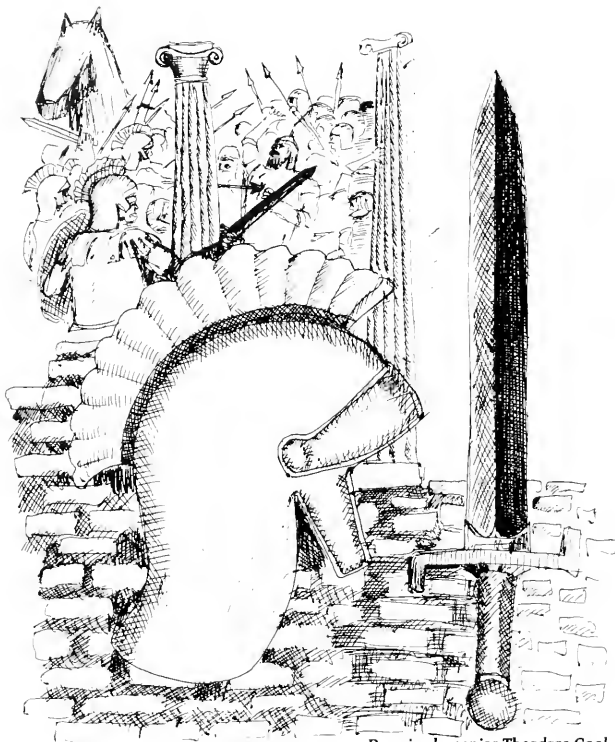

Homecoming week at Elmhurst this year showed everyone that Trojans have spirit coming out their ears. The week consisted of Sweats Day, Clash/Nerd Day, PJ Day, Punk Day, and Red and Gray/Hat Day. All were very successful. Along with the traditional homecoming dance and powderpuff football game, which the juniors won 14 to 6, there was a mock Dating Game between eight Trojans and eight Generals. Junior Dave Bone and senior Judi Johnson were chosen to escort the General contestants.

For the fourth consecutive year, the class of '83 captured first prize in the float competition. The hall competition went to the sophomore class, with the freshman and junior halls placing a close second. The senior hall was eliminated when the beer cans hanging from the ceiling were considered to be dangerous. Several unidentified Trojans also "borrowed" the Lucky Steer bull and "tethered" it on the front lawn.

A fantastic pep session preceded Friday night's activities, which unfortunately included a disappointing football loss to the Generals. There was, however, record attendance at the dance. The halftime activities were highlighted by a fireworks display and the crowning of senior Chrissy Morel as 1982-83 Homecoming Queen.

Wiping a tear of joy from her eye, senior Chrissy Morel becomes 1982-83 Homecoming Queen.

My lover and my friend

Silently we share these hours;
I'm in your arms once more.
You hold me close one final time,
Before we close the door.

Pressed so tight against you,
I begin to reminisce.
The future seems uncertain,
The past so full of bliss.

Vivid images come to mind,
That my memory holds dear.
A gentle smile creeps to my lips,
As you pull me even nearer.

You gave a scared teenager
Reasons to be adult
Without bringing all my childhood dreams
Screeching to a halt.

When it seemed all others betrayed me,
And moved along their way,
You shared your never-ending strength,
And swore you'd always stay.

Together there was something special,
We'd never known before —
A lot of laughs, also tenderness,
And even so much more.

Words can't express our mutual respect,
Or all we've struggled through.
You made a rough time seem so easy,
And you know that I love you.

But now we've finished growing,
No more childish games.
Please don't pretend; we both know the truth,
And there's no one to take the blame.

May you gain all that you wish for,
Happiness to the end.
Thank you for all you've given me,
My lover, my friend.

My Life

I sometimes think I'm invisible,
 Always around, but never seen.
 I sometimes think someone really
 Cares about me,
 But I realize then that I'm dreaming.
 It's really funny — I become visible
 At the strangest times.
 I seem to fade in when someone
 Needs something from me.
 As soon as they have it,
 I fade back into the nothingness
 That my existence is based on.
 Every time I try to reach out
 And touch someone that I love,
 They turn their back or
 Close a door in my face.
 Every time I want something,
 It's taken away from me.
 I sometimes think that nobody Believes I have feelings.
 I'm not incapable of feeling,
 Of loving someone.
 All I need is someone to love,
 Someone to love me.
 That's all I require to survive.
 But I don't have it,
 So I must be invisible.

Band members take a break from the heat during marching practice.

Junior Libby Shultz and choral director Allen Shaw find time for food despite band camp's hectic pace.

Determination and pride mix with weariness on these Marching Trojans' faces.

Showing us what their "dream girl" would look like are freshmen Alan Levine and Jim French.

One More Time

During the last week of August, the Marching Trojans went to their annual band camp. And once again, for the third straight year, they took a new director with them, Mr. Harry Bryant.

This change in leadership, many felt, was a struggle because the relationship of director to student is often closer than that of regular teacher-to-student. Some felt that the changes of styles, ideas, and personalities of the band director affected the outcome of the marching season.

"I feel that the band has been put under a strain by the change of directors but we've finally struck gold with Mr. Bryant," beamed head drum major Jeanne Fowerbaugh.

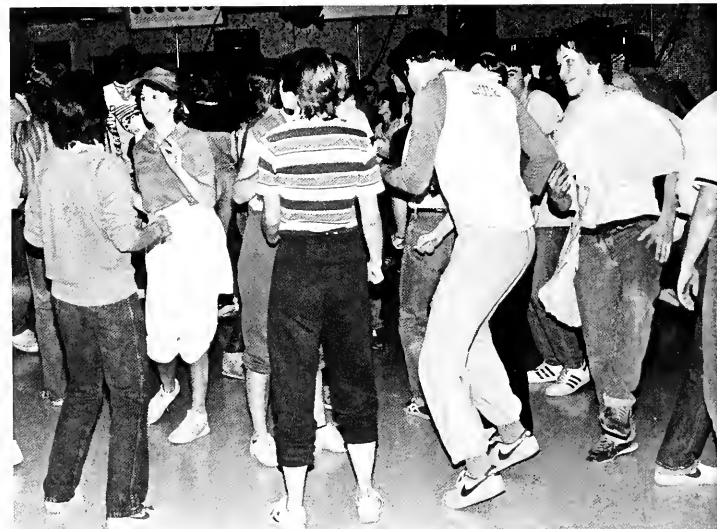

The band camp week progressed with more work than fun, but that work paid off at halftime shows, contests and other exhibitions through the cheers of the crowds.

An unidentified mole is about to get it from both sides while dancing at the Morp.

Morp court member Louro Moering watches Morp king Chris Morken and fellow court member Tracy Richardson slow dance.

These dancing Trojans get into the Morp spirit by dressing down for the occasion.

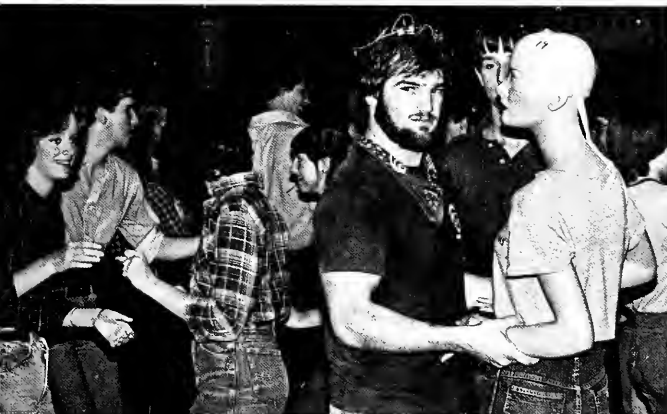

Morp Is Success

"Snapping their fingers to the beat" are juniors Rhonda Schroeder, Lisa Myers, and Danny McLemore.

The second annual MORP proved successful as approximately one hundred and fifty Trojans 'boogied the night away' to the music of Unique Lighting and Sound. The dance was sponsored by the Student Council and held in the EHS cafeteria. Decorations consisted of old tires, garbage bags, a beat up Volkswagen, and numerous other articles of junk which combined to make the cafeteria a little more "glamorous."

The dance was chaperoned by two anonymous mannequins, one of whom proved to be a very exciting date for senior Chris Morken. The evening was topped off with the crowning of seniors Julie Burt and Chris Morken as queen and king of the 1982-83 MORP. Chairman Rhonda Reynolds commented, "I was happy with the success of the MORP. I anticipated a good turnout and wasn't disappointed."

Fellow court members watch as Danny McLemore takes his position in front of the crowd.

Dancing with Morp king Chris Morken is "curly," one of the two anonymous chaperones at the dance. The chaperones were donated to the dance by J. C. Penney's.

Exchange students Anne Hunnemeyer and Steinunn Hall participate actively in Elmhurst drama in "Here's Love."

Explaining the situation to Jeanne Fowerbaugh is Jovan Booker (Mr. Macy).

'Here's Love'

This year's fall play was "Here's Love," a contemporary musical version of the movie "A Miracle on 34th Street." It was performed for the public on the weekend of Dec. 11-12, and was the first full music production to be attempted by the combined efforts of EHS' music and drama departments in several years. The play was a big success with both the cast and the audiences, with the lead roles performed by seniors Erik Eitman, Jeanne Fowerbaugh, and Darin York, with freshman Kathleen Heiney.

Director Shelley Wellington commented, "I foresee a musical every year or two because of the success and dedication of the cast and orchestra."

One cast member commented,

"We worked very hard and spent many long hours after school and on weekends to put everything together. I think we did a super job of sticking together."

Without the help of the many people behind the scenes, no play could be a success. Some of those people were: Laura Lawrence and Chris Starn, student directors; Marlin McCoart, stage manager; Anthony Hart, lights; Diane Robinson, program designer; Sheryl Anderson, Edd Eckels, Patty Woodruff, and Lisa Pepple, makeup crew; Judy Honig, Shawn Hanna, Michelle Downing, Steinunn Hall, Lynn Bates, Jolene Wolfe, Jackie Poindexter, and Jeanne Fowerbaugh, costume designers.

Asking Kris Kringle (alias Erik Eitman) about the facts of life is freshman Kathleen Heiney.

The cast of "Here's Love" staged a special showing in full costume for the student body.

Opportunities

We here at EHS are very lucky when it comes to English. Many may not realize it, but we have numerous opportunities in our English classes.

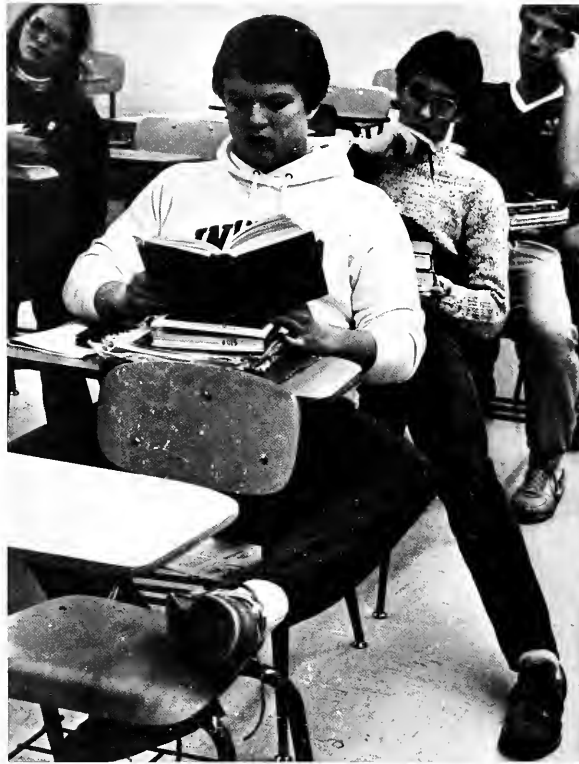

Think how easy it is to merely regard learning grammar, analyzing poetry, reading literature, writing compositions and giving speeches as a chore. And if you've taken an English course at Elmhurst, surely you've done it all, if not more. So why not consider it an opportunity? It may sound like some "line" a teacher would give you, but coming from a student it is just as sincere.

There are classes for all levels of English students, from honors English and senior composition to the average English class. We also have a speech class which is very good experience. Even if public speaking isn't your "thing" knowing how to deliver a speech will probably come in handy sometime later in your life.

Right now it may seem that every time you turn around your English teacher is breathing down your neck about some stupid little comma you left out, but remember, in the long run it's to our benefit!

Senior Mark Zurcher assumes a comfortable position to further his knowledge of the English language as several of his classmates look on.

Mr. Eytcheson spends his quiet time going over his students' English papers.

Mr. Storey assumes the position to make any comments on the day to the student's speech.

Math Everywhere

Everywhere, every day, in many different ways, math seems to be somehow related. From counting down the days till school's out to figuring out if you have enough money to take that special someone to that special restaurant, or if they'll have to settle for McDonalds; to trying to average your algebra grade, for some reason math always seems to be involved. Though we're still trying to figure out when we'll need to know how to graph all those things; Mr. Habegger says that you can never graph too much.

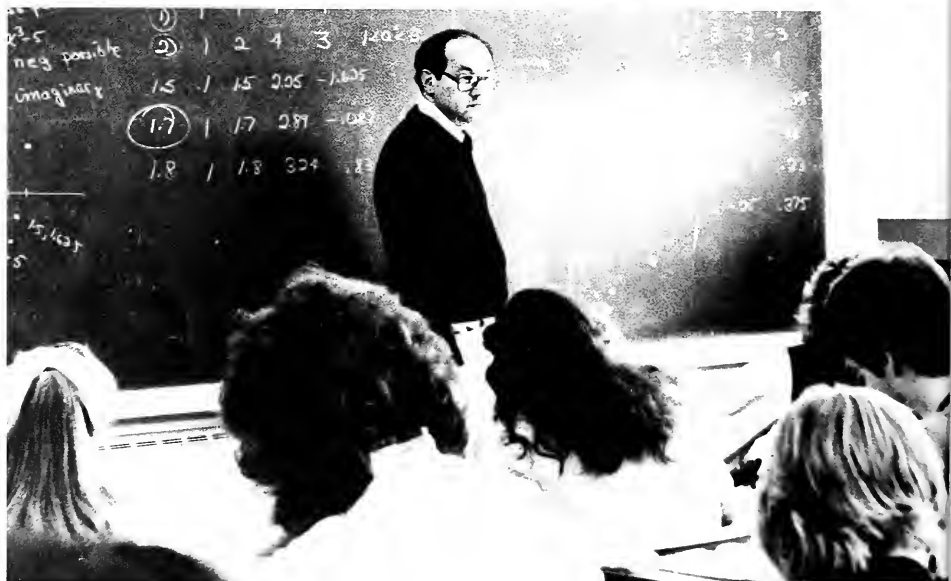

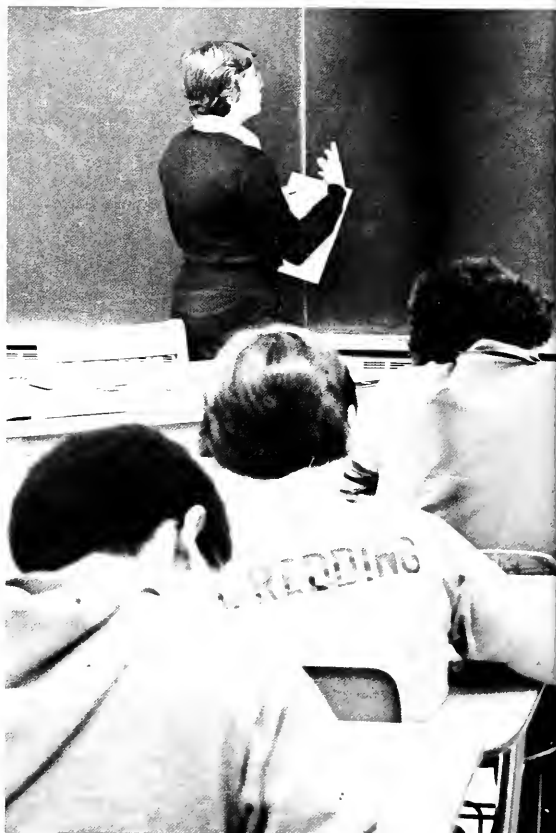

If proofs, parabolas, sin., tan., absolute value, theorems, angles, polynomials, logarithms, rationals, or integers don't ring a bell as of yet, just give them time. By the end of your four years, or more, of EHS you will be almost too familiar with them! That's no lie either.

On the more serious side, however, math is a very important part of our lives. It was important when we were born, as it will surely be when we die. No matter if it is freshman algebra, geometry, or trigonometry, math is, and always will be, never ending.

Though it is hard to admit a teacher could ever be right, agreeing with Phil Habegger on one point is easy. He has been known to express the thought that what we learn in high school math will repay itself and then some, later in life. Truer words have never been spoken. So, take advantage of what's yours for the taking.

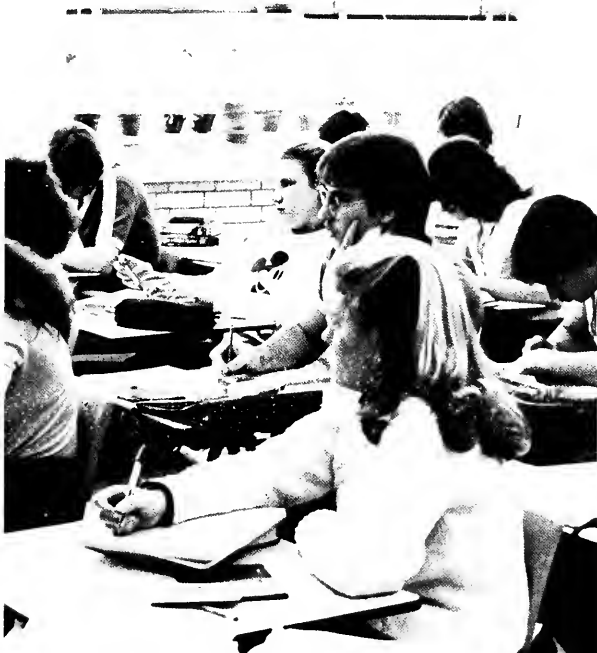

Miss Hollingsworth explains the finer points of writing proofs to her geometry students.

Mr. Habegger pauses for a moment to take a much needed breather before showing his advanced algebra students how to make yet another smooth move.

Junior Marie Heiney and her classmates take the necessary notes to complete and understand their assignments in advanced algebra.

Roberto Mitrevski and fellow students pay close attention to the explanation of their honors geometry assignment.

Senior Alan Reed further perfects his program writing skills in computer programming class.

Sophomores Julie Druley and Kevin Rogers have found that together they make more sense of their chemistry problems.

APPLE II, Frogger Too!

Much as we complain about it, our years at EHS just wouldn't be the same without some sort of science in them. From scurrying around collecting leaves as freshmen, and then dissecting worms, to the more dignified learning of the periodic table and the mixing of chemicals, life just wouldn't be the same without it.

Just think (if possible) what would you do without going to chemistry and wearing those "neat" goggles that make you look like a raccoon when you take them off? Or, how about dropping beakers, watching videos on the crocodile (and numerous other equally fascinating animals, such as the queen bee and the aardvark), also learning the number of chromosomes you are supposed to have! Now, what would you really do without all these learning experiences? Believe it or not, these things do come in handy every once in a while. For instance, if you just happened to want to know the molecular structure of K_2CrO_4 , then you would definitely be in luck. Or, maybe someday you're going to need to know the melting point of zinc. That's when you're really going to thank your chemistry teacher.

On the more serious side, Mr. Lohr recently received an APPLE II computer. He has many uses for this piece of modern technology, including making tests, homework assignments and not to forget playing Frogger!

Mr. Lohr quizzes frosh Dan Shallenberger on the anatomy of the crayfish in honors biology.

Mr. Carrier helps a confused junior Katie Frebel on a particularly difficult equation in advanced chemistry.

Senior Laura Neumann knows that it takes intense concentration to march her place in the show.

Concentration Key to Marching Trojans

Sweat, blood, tears, heat, cold — all these and more are synonyms to many for the word band. Although some fail to realize it, members of the band are a special breed of people. They are willing to give up much of the summer, when they would normally work, play or just "bum around." This is necessary to strive for the perfection the band always seems to be aiming for.

When asked why they are in band the general response seemed to be personal satisfaction, a feeling of accomplishment, and enjoyment! Drill team member Denise Laskowski countered with, "Why do football players, tennis buffs, ballerinas, or whatever, practice all the time? Obviously they must enjoy what they're doing!"

team instr. A. Shaw. 4th row: Equip. mgr. M. Stanley, T. Rager, S. Murray, T. Kahn, T. Lyon, S. Archbold, L. Mullins, M. Felicilda, L. Lauck, S. Lauck, P. Quake, L. Frye, L. Zigler, D. Howald, L. Pepple, P. Woodruff, D. Lozano, T. Boner, C. Murray, J. Quake, T. Dirnberger.

Junior Gwendalyn Little pages through her history book to find the answer to the question that was asked.

After being given the answer, senior Sheryl Anspach hurriedly writes it down.

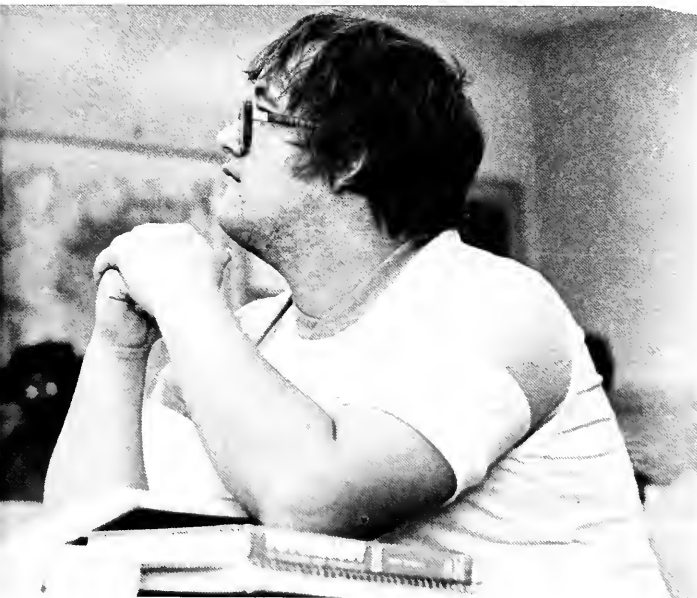

Junior Allen Maser uses his time wisely, while junior Joe Perjak catches a little "shut-eye" in U.S. history class.

In sociology class, senior Laura Haneline reads the pages that will be covered in class.

Social Studies a Must!

As a requirement of graduation, a student must take one full year of United States history. Also with the subject of U.S. history, one semester of government and one semester of a social science are required.

World and Indiana history are electives but are not a substitute for U.S. history.

In the social science department one of the following must be taken: Sociology is the study of why people treat each other the way they do. Psychology is the study of the human personality. Applied economics is the study of how people make a living. Anthropology is the study of social science that deals with the origin and development of man.

Senior Tim Reed shows 100 percent interest in class discussion.

Mr. Cochran, history teacher, shows emotion while explaining the Revolutionary War.

When asked a question about world history, sophomore Julie Kocks looks to her notes for the answer.

While junior Nancy Holland takes a test, she mentally reviews the information shared in office practice lows.

Mr. Reinhard didn't let pajama day hinder his class during spirit week.

Going over her assignment, senior Belinda Curtin prepares for shorthand.

Takin' Care of Business

Learning a profession in high school can someday lead to a very prosperous future in typing, accounting, or secretarial practice.

When asked if student interest in business courses has remained stable, Mr. Arland Reinhard, business department head, replied, "Even though the student enrollment has gone down in the 1982-83 school year, the enrollment in business classes has stayed the same."

Elmhurst High School is currently the first high school in the Fort Wayne Community School system to replace all its manual typewriters with electric machines.

"With consideration to the future the skills most needed are recordkeeping, accounting and at least one year typing," stated Mr. Reinhard.

As do all typical freshmen, Ron Crockett pays close attention to Mr. Smith, a business law teacher.

While given the rest of class time, senior Sara Barrett uses her time wisely.

Trojans Salvage 2-8 Season

ELMHURST TROJANS

What happened to the Trojan football team in 1982? Injuries along with inexperience killed the Trojans' chances at state playoffs.

Expectations were high as the Trojans were state-rated at the beginning of the season.

They opened the season with a win over Marion. Then suddenly they dropped one to North Central, who was rated number 1 in the state at the time.

This started the nightmare, as the Trojans lost their leading rusher and some linemen. But what really hurt the most was the loss of senior Joe Birch, a key man on both offense and defense. Joe suffered a serious knee injury that ended his football career. The Trojans still were tough but didn't have that "hard hitting" that they had before, due to injuries and disciplinary reasons. They ended their season at 2-8.

Next year the Trojans will be losing head coach Jim Welborn. Coach Welborn will be calling it quits after nineteen years on the Trojan coaching staff. Mr. Welborn will still be teaching at EHS, however.

With twenty-one lettermen coming back, things look up for the Trojans in '83. "The Trojans will have a strong running attack next year, along with a strong defensive backfield, and that's not all," commented Coach Welborn. They also will have the kicking potential even after the graduation of senior Chuck Standiford, who was an All-State selection.

VARSITY FOOTBALL — Front Row: Coach Larson, Coach Alexander, R. Quinones, R. Jordan, B. Scott, T. Hall, C. Whitefield, R. Dunbar, J. Scott, J. Macon, B. Williams, D. Walker, T. Lashley, J. Andrews. Second Row: Coach Stubbs, Coach Storey, J. Lee, J. Davis, B. Hart, L. Cobb, N. Crawford, B. Marcum, G. Jehl, M. Bieber, J. Neuhaus, D. Crass, T. Estep, B. Fisher, M. Saylor, A. Rife, J. Booth, Mgr. J. Mayer, Mgr. J. Fraser. Third Row: S. Mueller, M. Foreman, T. Wallace, C. Fuller, B. Ross, A. Herring, T. Dowdell, J. Birch, S. Underwood, M. Zurcher, B. Zelt, R. Linnemeier, T. Blough, A. Drennan, C. Marken, A. Aylor, L. Garvey. Fourth Row: Coach Welborn, Coach Hageman, D. Lee, D. Schlosser, T. Muff, J. Foreman, M. Surface, C. Standiford, C. Saylor, D. Travis, K. Nevers, S. Ohmart, B. Grimes, S. Finken, J. Falland, D. McLemore, S. Allen, J. Graham, G. Horris.

Whoever will be the coach next year, he will have something to work with as things look good for the Trojans in the fall of '83.

Coaching his last year, in the game against Snider, head coach Jim Welborn takes time to think of how the Trojans can stop the Panthers.

After suffering a serious knee injury in the South Side game, senior Joe Birch was left sidelined for the rest of the season. Joe was just one of several Trojans to suffer injuries this season.

Leading the way for senior Jim Folland is senior Mark Zurcher (56). Mark was on the All-SAC team this year as well as last year.

Showing his "All-State" form, senior Chuck Standiford drills one in from 47 yards out in the Marion game, a new school record.

Putting pressure on the Marion quarterback, the Trojan defense shows why it's better to pass than run on them.

After being hurt in the Luers game, senior Jim Folland takes a break from the action before going back in.

Busting up the middle, junior Andy Aylor picks up yardage.

Underclassmen Competitive

M. Saylor, G. Jehl, A. Aylor. Third Row: Coach P. Alexander, K. Schlosser, R. Rider, B. Ross, B. Zelt, D. McLemore, K. Nevers, S. Mueller, M. Foreman, R. Jordan.

The reserve and freshman football records weren't too impressive, but reserve coaches H. C. Story and former EHS student and football player Paul Alexander did well with what they had.

Both records were very misleading as the young Trojans were competitive in many games. Due to injuries to varsity players, many reserve players were moved up, thus leaving many skilled positions empty.

The reserve team finished at 1-8. As for the freshman team, they finished their season at 1-6. Freshman coach Willie Stubbs commented, "The guys played well, but they let down too much, not up to their potential." Freshman Alonzo Drennon was the most valuable player, voted on by the coaching staff, because he was the only freshman to play varsity football.

Using his mobility junior Jesse Lee runs out of the pocket and up field.

Heading for some running room, freshman Mark Taylor outruns his Luers opponent.

After being ejected from the Wayne reserve game, sophomore Brian Rice sits out the rest of the game with a smile.

On the ground after "going all out" for the ball is junior Ann Kacks. Senior Maureen Landrigan and junior Sandra Allen confer about positioning.

With grace and body control, senior Shown Mitchell makes "bumping" the ball look easy.

During a break, juniors Linda Schmitt, Carol Frankewich, and Rhonda Allen join in a team meeting.

Coach Deb Fox watches her team execute.

It was another year for blending into a new coach's policies for the volleyball team. Miss Deb Fox took command of the team that had served under three different coaches in the last three years.

After dropping the season opener to Adams Central, 7-15 and 13-15, Elmhurst promptly won their next two games. They beat Carroll, 1-15, 17-15, 15-11, and took Woodlan, 3-15, 15-6, 15-4. After the first three games the volleyball team looked like they were ready to roll.

But, this wasn't to be the fate of the Trojans, for they went on to drop 13 of 14 games. They did manage to beat Wayne, and finished 3-15. In the sectionals, they lost to Harding.

Although 3-15 doesn't appear to be that good, it was the best season record in four years. The team will be back with a lot of experience, losing only three seniors.

Spikers Improve Record

Senior Laura Haneline "sets" the ball.

Trying to bring the Trojans back is senior Maureen Landrigan.

Reserves, Frosh Net Experience

Kocks, Lynette Smith, Christy Peters, Cathy Peters.

Coached by newcomer Kevin Lee, the reserves finished with an 8-9 record, and gained some valuable experience for the future.

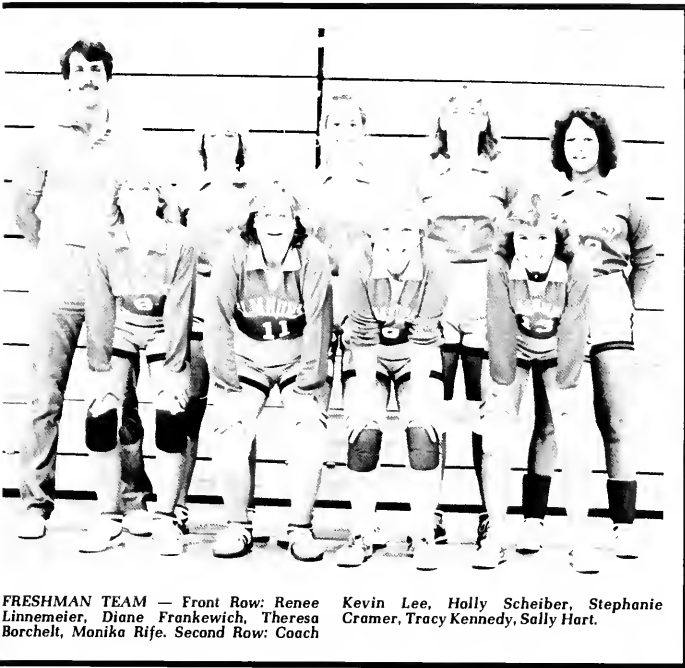

This year's team (made up of eight sophomores and two freshmen — Holly Scheiber, Monika Rife) had what could best be described as a see-saw year. They fell into a pattern of losing one game and then winning one. This cycle continued through the first eleven games, until they won three in a row. Then they promptly lost their last three.

For the freshmen, their season was totally different. During what is a learning year, the freshmen applied themselves well by going 7-0 for the season. The ninth graders dominated in their play, going to a third match in only two games, Concordia and North Side. The freshmen were also coached by Kevin Lee.

Showing that tennis players have a style of their own, sophomore Matt Miller hits a ball back to his opponent.

Netmen Improve Record

This year the boys' tennis team was a year older and a year stronger. The team finished their season with a 5-9 record.

"This year we had an up and down season due to changes in the varsity line-up because of suspensions. Hopefully next year we will improve on our overall outcome," stated sophomore Matt Miller.

During the season, junior Jim Grady was the first singles player. Sophomores Stuart Williams and Matt Miller held the number one doubles position. Holding top reserve positions were sophomores Andy Ross at first singles with sophomores Brian Bucher and Glen Baker as the top doubles players. Chris Bishop had the best overall record for varsity with 8 wins and 8 losses.

Elmhurst did not advance out of sectional competition. Due to a band contest some of the varsity team members were not able to play during the sectional competition.

"We will have a young team next year with only one senior remaining on the team, but I think our team still will be tougher," commented sophomore Stuart Williams.

This year sophomore Chris Bishop received the MVP award. Freshman Ron Travis was given the most improved award while junior Jim Grady earned the mental attitude award.

Displaying his own flair in returning the ball to his opponent is senior Carlos Porro smashing a hard overhand.

Running with the wind, displaying her own style is freshman Diana Everette.

“We had a lot of fun this year, but we worked hard, and that hard work paid off,” commented senior Mac MacKay.

The hard work did pay off, because the boys' cross country team had a very successful season with a final record of 5-6.

“We set goals at the beginning of the season. We wanted to place at least in the top five in SAC, and wanted to get out of sectionals and compete in regionals and we achieved both!” stated Coach Chuck Kammeyer.

In sectional competition the boys placed fourth out of 11 schools which qualified them to run in regionals. However, they did not qualify to go on to state.

“We opened some other teams' eyes and let them know that we will be a force to reckon with next year,” explained junior Phil LeMaster. LeMaster, who held the school record last year, broke his own record twice this season with a time of 16:26.

The harriers will only be losing two seniors to graduation this year. “Most of our team consists of sophomores and I'm looking forward to another successful season,” stated Coach Kammeyer.

This year LeMaster received the MVP award. Sophomore John Schmitt was given the most improved award while senior Jeff Kruse earned the mental attitude award.

The girls' cross country team wound up their season with a 3-9 record. “There were a lot more teams this year with a lot stiffer competition than in the past,” announced Coach Dave Smith. This year's major standout was freshman Diana Everette. Everette holds the girls record for the 3,000 meter run with a time of 11:22 at Swinney Park. “She has one of the best times in the area,” added Coach Smith.

Due to injury and illness the girls could not run as a team during sectionals; they had to run as individuals. “You must have five people to run as a team and we only had four,” explained Coach Smith. Even without a full team the girls did well with sophomore Barb Krieg earning a first place and senior Julie Burt receiving a second place during the sectional competition.

The MVP award for the girls was given to Burt. The award for most improved went to Krieg and senior Jane Stinson won the mental attitude award.

Next year the girls will have a young team with only one junior. “I'm hoping for more interest in girls cross country. I'm trying to develop 'the long red line,’” concluded Coach Smith.

Bringing it all he's got, in the final sprint to the end, sophomore 1051 Vordran runs for the finish line.

Demonstrating the technique of running are a few cross country team members.

Council Activities

"Get those posters up . . . now!"

"O-kay, we only have three more days until Homecoming and the dance so let's hurry up and get done what your chairperson tells you to . . . or else!"

If you are a member of the Student Council these typical remarks are etched on your brain because you heard them so often. Student Council members have always taken a lot of flack but based on this year's account of 'successful' activities, they somehow always manage to get the job done. This was apparent in the 1982-83 school year as the council was off and running right from the beginning with a spectacular Homecoming week of fun-filled festivities. Student Council sponsor, Mr. John Sinks, had this to say: "This year's Homecoming was undoubtedly the best in the history of the school."

The council also sponsored the usual line-up of activities including the Morp, Miss Virginia, and the Snowball, which were all successful and enjoyed by the student body. The preparation of these events takes much time and effort by many members and this year was considered successful in the fact that so many students enjoyed these events and participated in them.

Preparing for the Homecoming Dance involves much hard work and Karen Brezette, Renee Bonohoom and Lisa Morken are more than happy to lend their "hot oir."

Student Council President Judi Jahnsen and senior representative Julie Burt decide that wearing pajamas in school is twice as much fun compared to at home.

Changes Take Part

Campus Life offers something for everyone and this year's line-up was no exception to that rule. The annual Burger Bash, Break-Away weekend, Florida Trip, Ski Trip, and something new, SPUG (Shoaff Park Underground Games), was introduced.

A new changeover from the beginning of the year was the switching of directors. Steve Clough's position of Campus Life was taken over by Bob Roebuck who had served as assistant director for the first two grading periods.

Though this year's Campus Life family has proven to be smaller than groups of past years, the kindness and understanding and of course, over-all craziness mixed with lots of love will always be a dominating recipe in this unique organization.

One negative aspect of this year was the discontinuation of Campus Life announcements on the PA system. This change was due to a new school rule stating that Campus Life was not considered part of school oriented activities. Campus Life accepted this and still came out on top by using student volunteers to distribute flyers about meeting dates and times. Campus Life proves to be a valuable part of high school for many students and will undoubtedly prove to be so in the future.

Sophomore Jennie Leeper discovers the joys and pains of marshmallow eating in harmless game of "chubby bunnies."

Perfecting that disco style is one way that junior Lynn Crockett expresses himself.

Not to be outdone, junior Rhonda Allen proves that she too can disco with the best of them.

Diane Lee pays avid attention to what is being said whereas Rhonda Allen doesn't seem interested.

Campus Life wouldn't be complete without group leaders and Bob Roebuck proves invaluable as a part of the organization's staff.

Always Ready to Lend a Hand

The faculty at Elmhurst has a big job ... to keep EHS running as smoothly as possible. That's a big order, especially for a school as big as Elmhurst. But the staff here gets the job done.

Four members were added to the administration team this year: Assistant Principal Dr. Arleen Zumbrun, Psychometrist-Guidance Counselor Kathleen Adair, Guidance Counselor Alvin Harris, and Athletic Director Duane Rowe.

The faculty is here for the students. If students take advantage of that, then the school runs better. The main reason that Elmhurst runs so smoothly is that the students of EHS utilize the faculty. If they have a question, the students don't hesitate to seek the answer from their counselors.

Miss Adair, the freshman counselor, had this to say about her first year at EHS: "This has been a terrific year. The freshman students and upperclassmen have made me feel welcome and wanted. I only wish there was more time to talk to more of the students informally. They can teach me so much."

The EHS faculty is always hard at work, but still they're always ready to lend a hand.

Mrs. Beauchot does her share of lending a hand by answering the telephone at her desk.

To keep the school functioning smoothly, a large crew of service workers assists the faculty with myriad responsibilities.

Taking a Close Look at Teachers

Homework, late assignments, lectures on chewing gum in class, pop quizzes — it's all part of daily life at EHS.

When the alarm clock rings, every student has to prepare himself for a day of whatever the teacher is going to throw at him; tests, essays, fifty-problem algebra assignments, you name it.

Mrs. Wellington discusses the manifold advantages of knowing the English language with her junior class.

Through this seemingly unending attack, students should take time to consider a role-reversal. Teachers, too, rise at horribly early hours to drive to their jobs. While most people don't have to be on the job until nine o'clock, teachers have to be wide awake and ready to go before eight o'clock. Then they stay until five or six o'clock, grading pages and pages of assignments. Then next is their homework; weekends spent grading papers, making up tests, and preparing lessons. No easy job.

In addition, teachers have to put up with the students. Answer honestly; could you put up with thirty students, five times a day for five days a week? Not many people can.

It takes a special person to be a teacher. Teachers have to have patience, perseverance, confidence, dependability, and determination. The National Education Association summed it up in their nationwide slogan — "I shape the world — I am a teacher."

A Teacher's Job Is Never Done

From coaching athletics to taking tickets at the plays, teachers at EHS have more than just teaching to do.

The average teacher doesn't just come to school, teach a class, then leave at the end of sixth period. Besides having to take care of the extra-curricular duties surrounding their basic job, they are also called on to coach athletics, direct marching bands, Trojan Singers, and plays, and help out generally with various after school activities.

Teachers don't have secretaries, or assistants, or even office boys to help out. They handle the work with occasional help from student teachers from nearby colleges, or the ever-present service workers. But they can always manage a smile or a cheerful greeting. As Mr. Habegger told his advanced algebra class, "I want to be the only teacher at Elmhurst to be in a good mood every day all year."

Mrs. Blessing smiles at the photographer, Mr. Poor, while grading papers in the faculty lounge.

Elsie Alter smiles as something amusing distracts her attention from her work momentarily.

Taking care of the famous student-restricted Pepsi in the receiving area is just one of the duties Sue Armstrong helps with.

Behind the Scenes at EHS

What lurks behind the scenes at Elmhurst? Well, among other things, the staff of kitchen ladies and custodians.

The custodians are led by Walt Hardiek and include both a day and night shift. The kitchen ladies, led by Delores Shultz, are here bright and early to make breakfast every day.

A major part of EHS, these people are the backbone of a well-run school.

This shows in their participation in school activities, along with the way they get their jobs done. Sure, there may be jokes about the school lunches, but there are plenty of EHS students in line every day. And clean rooms are nice to have class in.

The students at Elmhurst may not be the most appreciative, but the existence of a crew behind the scenes at EHS is no secret.

Hundreds of nervous, lost teenagers were thrown into a different environment. Soon they found the advantages and disadvantages of a larger school.

One problem was finding their rooms. One freshman who was taking gym for the first time in high school was told that the dressing room was just across the street next to the tennis courts!

However the good things about high school life by far outnumbered the bad. Freshmen found that they were able to participate in various clubs and sports that were not offered in middle school. The freshman class of '86 also found high school life to be a great deal freer.

All in all the majority of freshmen found that "moving up" wasn't as bad as they thought it would be.

EHS Has Much to Offer!

High school life means more school work, being the runt of the litter, being lost for the first week of school, but most importantly more fun!

Although the extra school work is no fun, there are many enjoyable aspects of high school. Freshmen participated heavily in homecoming activities, pep sessions, the morp, and supporting athletic teams to victory.

"There are so many different things you can do in high school that we never could do in middle school, for instance, during boy's sectional week . . . getting involved was a lot of fun!" exclaimed freshman Sharon Marine.

There are some unpleasant aspects about high school, but the majority of it is, as Sharon stated, "a lot of fun!"

Freshmen Learn in Different Ways

Finding the right method for learning high school work, or at least being able to show a respectable report card, is a must for freshmen.

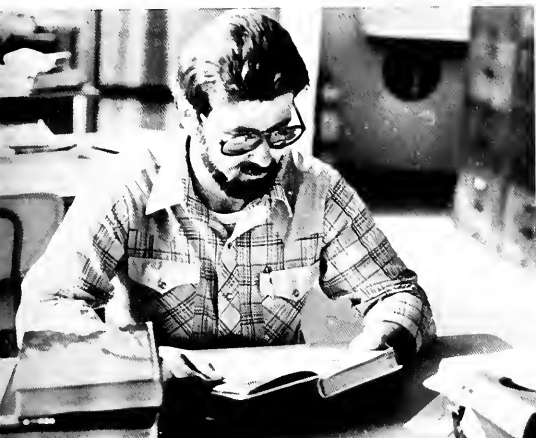

Picking the method to use can be difficult mainly because of individual talents. Some students feel that learning will happen by itself. Others feel that they are blessed with extraordinary powers and cracking open books will only hamper their powers of learning. The majority of students, however, agree with the old-fashioned way of studying.

Many of these methods have been proven, and others haven't. Some may work for some people while they fail for others. The method of learning really doesn't matter; the final product, however, does.

Writing and keeping an eye on the teacher at the same time can be difficult, but somehow Stacey Dowdell manages.

Keith Young tries to make up for lost time by studying hard. Keith is doing both freshman and sophomore work.

"School work seems to be a little more enjoyable when working with friends," according to Denise Hort, Shelly Bonahoom, and Stephanie Cromer.

Freshmen Join to Form Family

As eighth graders flocked into Elmhurst they carried their individual feelings and beliefs about high school. Now, with three fourths of the year behind, they are considered the class of '86.

For some reason students of the same class come together. One possible reason might be the making of new friends.

These new friends are very important because everyone needs someone to follow until they have a firm grip on EHS life.

Another possible reason might be that these students are a type of family. It all started when the upperclassmen teased them and played tricks on them. As the year went on the quick-learning ninth graders were finding that they were competing with other classes.

For freshmen the feeling of being individuals is now becoming the feeling of being a member of a class. Now they are able to say proudly, "I'm a member of the class of '86."

Freshmen Show Artistic Abilities

This year's freshmen showed outstanding capabilities in the arts. Such accomplishments as having a photograph win an award in New York City or winning the Underclass Art Award are no longer just dreams.

Being a good artist has more advantages than just being able to click a shutter or draw a cartoon character. Some people feel that being good in art carries over into other aspects of life. "It seems to me that people who are good in art are often good in many other things. Maybe it is because of their imagination," stated Mr. Goss.

Whatever the reason for its effects on other subjects, freshman artists have a great deal to be proud of.

Jesse Myers lets his imagination take control as he uses his paint brush during art class.

Prevailing winds from the west, the sound of Mr. Werling's voice over the P.A. at the boys' basketball games, and the snow that dusts the pine tree in the courtyard are all signs to EHS'ers that the winter of 1982-83 is at hand. Some Trojans find the school year slipping away. The coming of winter signals the ending of the first semester and the beginning of the second and final semester of the school year. The winter of '82-'83 isn't something to come but something to be lived. With the intention of living out the remainder of the year the EHS student body plugs on toward the end.

Pep Sessions Great

Pep sessions this year were few and far between, but they were well worth the wait. The year started off with a bang with a pep session for the Marching Band, and the sessions only got better. Homecoming week was one of Elmhurst's best ever, with school spirit running high. The powderpuff game went to the juniors with a score of 21 to 6. At the homecoming pep sessions, a new cheerleading squad was formed, consisting of junior and senior guys. However, the squad dissolved soon after Homecoming, appearing only one more time at the basketball regional pep session. The faculty also broke tradition this year and led a faculty cheer, along with cheerleaders from six other schools who presented cookies and cakes to the team. It will be a long time before the boys' gym will be as full as it was that afternoon.

Christmas Elmhurst Style

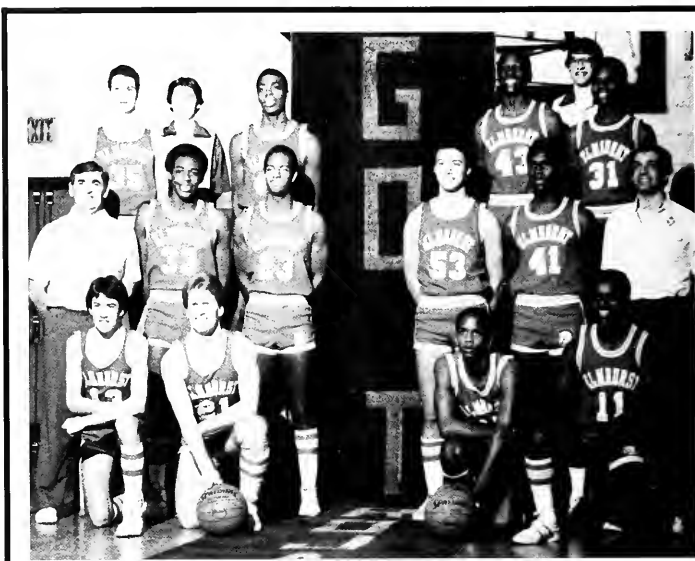

Christmas this year was a snowless one, a fact celebrated by some and mourned by others. Ski trips in the tri-state area had to be either cancelled or relocated somewhere further west. Trips to usually warmer climates were also cancelled when Florida received as much snow as we usually get here. Trojans managed to keep busy here in Fort Wayne by gathering food and clothing for Miss Virginia, Indiana's version of Mother Theresa. Although the country is in an economic depression, we collected nearly as much food as we have in the past two years. Elmhurst is one of her biggest contributors, and hopefully will continue to be so in the future. Santa Claus also managed to keep busy in Fort Wayne, with businesses reporting an average of three percent higher sales than in the past two years. The only change brought on by the depression appears to be the items that sold. People bought more practical items like flannel shirts, jeans, underwear, and other such items than impractical items like cosmetics, fancy jewelry, and negligees (also a fact celebrated by some and mourned by others). All in all, Christmas in 1982 was a busy, if snowless, one.

The 1983 season was truly unforgettable for Elmhurst! Before the year started the typical analysis of the Trojans read: A young, inexperienced team, who will be led by rookie coach Dan Wilson (Who?). Should finish next to the bottom in the SAC.

With such reports circulating, the Trojans took their pride and skills, and worked hard. Elmhurst had a much smarter team this year, and each game tested Elmhurst in one aspect of their game or another. One could even sense the concentration, and trying, occurring out on the court.

Elmhurst finished third in the SAC at 5-4, and was in high gear for the sectionals. They promptly defeated Fort Wayne Christian and then upset Snider. Thus, the team that wasn't supposed to do it won a sectional title — the first since 1971. Elmhurst lost to Northrop at regionals, but the glass slipper fit perfectly in 1983. The team is losing four seniors, but the future for the "Big Red Machine" looks very promising.

Although the reserve team finished 3-14, the final result could easily have been a record of 9-8, for the reserves lost six games where they were within six points. But it wasn't to be; and a winning record isn't the total, most important aspect of the game. The reserve team receives the final grooming, before stepping out on the hardwood as a varsity player. This year's team, coached by Mr. Phil Morey, was led by sophomore John Graham, and freshmen Anthony Dunbar, Ken Jones. All three went on to see action with the sectional-winning varsity team.

The sophomore team had a tough season, finishing at 0-6. But the players received valuable experience, vital to future performance. A fine 5-8 record was owned by the freshman team. Dunbar and Jones also led the way for the freshmen, coached by Mr. Kevin Lee. Elmhurst can be proud of its younger players, and can look to the future with excitement.

Varsity Posts Improved Record

Shooting a basket, while her Harding opponent tries to stop her, is sophomore Samantha Jones.

Pushing her way right to the basket adding two more to the scoreboard is junior Cheryl Davis.

The varsity girls' basketball team had a lot to look forward to this year with last year's top players returning to the court. This year, junior Lori Miller was the leading scorer; following close behind was junior Cheryl Davis, while sophomore Samantha Jones was the leading rebounder for the Trojans.

The team bettered its record tremendously, posting a 14-8 record comparing to last year's 3-15.

When sectional time came, the Trojans plowed right over the Harding Hawks and the Wayne Generals to then face the Heritage Patriots in the final game. Although the Trojans bowed to the Patriots in the championship game they still, according to Coach Julie Hollingsworth, "played a great game. The team not only improved physically but also mentally," explained Coach Hollingsworth.

The girl hoopsters look for another good season ahead of them next year with no one graduating from the team. Therefore the team looks nowhere except up!

"I just wanted to get the most that I could out of the team," stated reserve coach Willie Stubbs.

Indeed the reserve team did the most they could posting a very impressive 15-3 record for the season.

The reserve team lost one sophomore, Julie Kocks, to playing varsity but the team still had its standouts. Sophomore Chris Delaney, playing guard, was the major ballhandler for the team while sophomores Lizzie Moore and Lowanda Bowen were also top scorers. "With the combined effort from the rest of the team the girls had a very successful season," commented Coach Stubbs.

This year's freshman team only consisted of six players. Although they did not have a large team, the girls did very well with a 6-3 record as proof.

"As for next year's team, we should still be pretty strong. We won't be losing many players because there are not going to be many positions open on varsity," concluded Coach Stubbs.

Grapplers No Fluke; Sectional Champs!

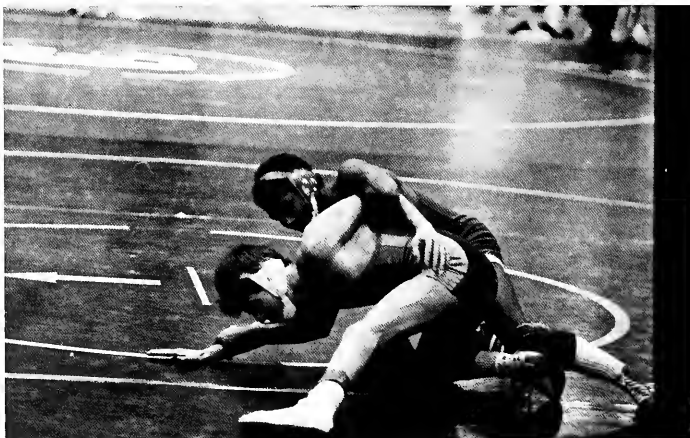

This year's grapplers proved many things to many people.

They proved that last year's sectional championship was no fluke. In fact the Trojans finished with a 7-4-1 dual meet record, and if that wasn't enough they finished 4th in the Carroll regional and 10th in the Fort Wayne semi-state. The Trojans this year placed the highest they ever have in both regional and semi-state wrestling tournaments.

Cooch Terry Larsen commented, "There was a lot of senior leadership on the squad. Seniors Jerry Skinner, Mark Sherbondy, and Jim Foreman pushed the young wrestlers and made them work."

Many underclassmen helped out, particularly sophomore Oliver Richmond, a sectional champ, regional champ, and semi-state champ. Richmond finished his season at 30-2, and broke many wrestling records at EH5.

Other underclassmen who helped out the squad were juniors Jeff Davis (15-11), Matt Foreman (15-12), Wade Travis (3-18), Rich Neuhaus (6-15), sophomores Scott Durnell (11-15), Craig Sherbondy (8-13), and freshman Alonzo Drennon (14-15).

Cooch Larsen has a very good attitude toward next year. He commented, "We're losing four wrestlers in key weight classes, but the lineup will adjust, and reserve wrestlers like junior Ray Quinones (who had the best reserve record at 12-4-1), junior Todd Blough, and freshman Jerome Adkins should help the varsity out quite well."

Looking at next year, the team's prospects are good, and the wrestlers will be working hard throughout the summer by wrestling in tournaments and visiting camps.

Cooch Larsen closed saying, "We're shooting for the regional, and I know we proved ourselves as a team this year, so we'll just have to wait and see."

Reserve Coach John McLaughlin gives his undivided attention to a match against Northrop.

Individuals Stand Out

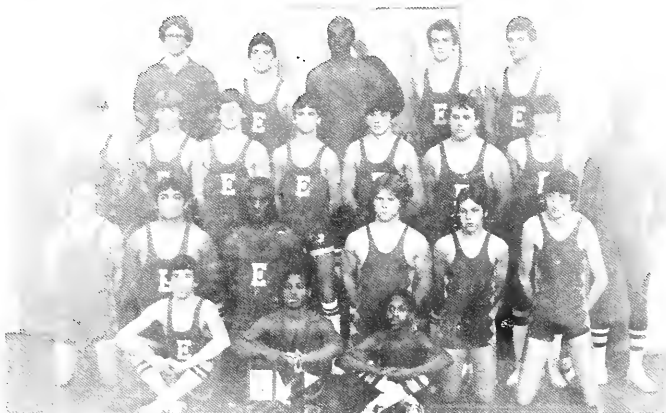

There were many highlights on the reserve wrestling team this year. The young Trojans finished with a 3-7-1 record, but the team really didn't have representation in every weight class.

Wrestlers with successful seasons were juniors Ray Quinones (12-4-1), Brad Hart (6-3), Todd Blough (7-3), sophomore Reggie Howard (7-5), and freshman Jerome Adkins (6-9).

Coach Terry Larsen commented, "The only thing we lacked was the depth in the lightweight and heavyweight categories."

Many grapplers placed well in both the SAC and Huntington reserve tournaments. Placing in the SAC were Quinones, first; Hart, second; and Adkins and sophomore Terry Wallace, sixth. Huntington placers were Blough, second; Quinones, third; Howard, fourth; and Adkins, fourth.

Wrestlers looking for varsity spots next year will be Adkins at 98, Quinones at 145, and Blough at 177. Coach Larsen concluded, "I was really pleased with the reserves this year, as far as individuals go."

Hard Work and Determination

Is gymnastics worth all the torn ligaments, aching muscles, antagonizing shin splints, sore blistered hands, and all those long, hard practices you go to, when you could easily be out with your friends doing something else?

"Yes, it's very much worth it! Those are just some of the things that go along with the sport that make it all the more challenging and exciting to cope with," stated sophomore Jodie Turnbow.

This year's gymnastics team did have its share of injuries. Freshman Kris Lewis broke her hand during the first meet of the season, competing on vault. Lewis returned competing with one hand until she was able to compete with her other after it had totally healed. Senior Laura Haneline was plagued with various injuries during the season. Having sore, weak ankles and a bad back forced Haneline to sit out a couple of meets during the season to rest up for sectionals, while junior Rhonda Schroeder broke a bone in her foot which limited what she could do. Although the team had its injuries, the girls never gave up. The two key ideas that kept them going were "hard work and determination." The team overall had a very good season posting an impressive 9-5 record.

The intermediate team ended their season with a strong 8-6 record. The team consisted of underclassmen with sophomore Jodie Turnbow leading the way, while freshmen Denise Hart and Shelly Bonahoom were also major standouts. With the combined efforts from the rest of the team the girls had a good season.

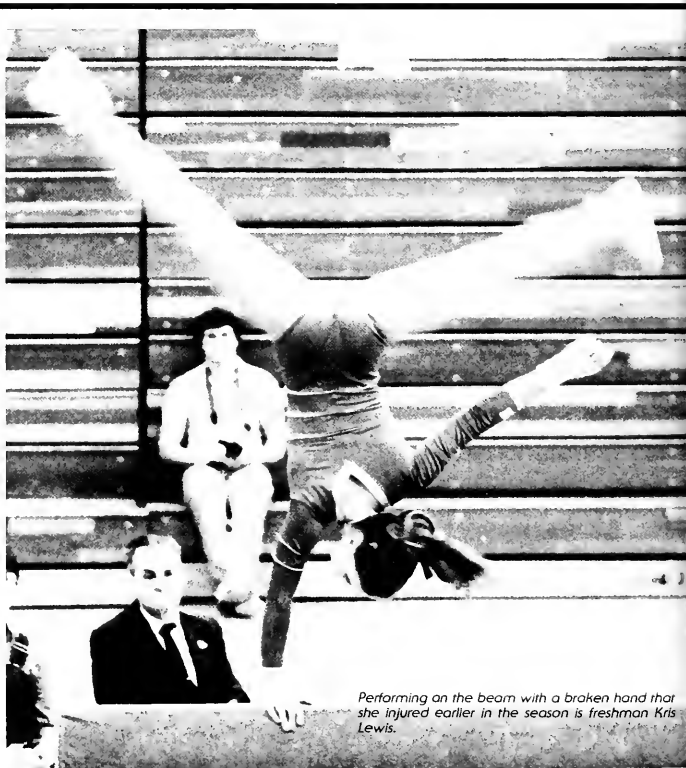

In sectionals, as a team, the optional girls earned a third place just behind Homestead and Northrop. Haneline, the only team member who made it out of sectional competition, ended her senior year in style going on to state competition competing all-around where she placed 16th.

The team will be losing Haneline and senior Jane Strinson but will still have two juniors, one sophomore and a freshman returning next year.

Teamwork Prevails for Hockey Club

Junior Don Haneline cuts in on his opponent in an attempt to make a steal.

Protecting the puck as he looks to make a pass, senior Tracy Richardson stays alert.

Whizzing along the polished glare of ice at untold speeds, slashing at a blur known as the puck, and thumping opponents against the boards — the Elmhurst hockey club battled and finished at 5-10-2 for the season.

"One cannot say this year's hockey team was not competitive, because it was," explained senior and team captain, Tracy Richardson. Despite losing several players to graduation last year, teamwork put things together for the Trojans and prevailed in 1983.

The slap-shooting icemen finished fifth in the southern Athletic Conference, and journeyed on to the state tournament. They came away short by four goals, 3-6, against the Timbers of Lawrence High School. During their season trek, the hockey club pulled off a big upset against Perry South out of Indianapolis. Coached by former Fort Wayne Komer star, Mr. James Waslawski, the rough body-checking team was led by Richardson, along with junior Dan Haneline, sophomores Jim Waslawski and Glen Baker.

Except for Richardson, everyone will be returning next year for the club, and the experience making up that squad will make for a top contending team in the conference. "Teams were afraid of us, and next year there is no reason why they should change their feelings," projected Richardson.

Tracy Richardson skates in to defend his goal.

Boys Boys Boys

"Boy cheerleaders? You've got to be kidding! I suppose they wear little cheerleading skirts... and make-up too!" scoffed a few wary Trojans. But a very daring, very courageous group of young men have broken the old stereotype mold and begun an Elmhurst tradition.

"Colleges have always had guys as cheerleaders. I'm surprised this hasn't caught on in most high schools sooner," exclaimed Reserve Captain Jodie Turnbow. "They have added so much to the varsity squad," she continued.

"At first I was rather hesitant because I didn't have any idea how the crowd would react to the idea, but now I really enjoy it," stated actual boy cheerleader Steve Finken. He added, "At the very start we (the boy cheerleaders) went to the first practice not quite knowing what to expect, but now I think we have reached a level where we can do as much as the college guy cheerleaders attempt to."

The girl and boy cheerleaders combined as a whole accomplished their intended goal for the 1982-83 school year. They led the school in spirit and roused pep that was dormant from many of their fellow students. An essential part of our high school is the pride that is shown and much of this pride is initiated by our cheerleaders. Both the boys and the girls.

Reserve captain Jodie Turnbow proves that watching is also a valuable part of being a cheerleader.

Perfecting his back swing, Scott Coe concentrates on keeping his eyes on the pins.

Bowlers Roll Along

This year the bowlers rolled right on through their season with very competitive players and teams as well. Team number five, consisting of Greg Buuck, Scott Coe, Ben Ewing, and Phil Bonahoom finished out the season on top. They were followed very closely by teams number two, three, and one. Ken Schlosser led the boys in the high series with a 578. Burch Taper was in second with 543, and Andy Aylor came in third with a 527.

Leading the girls were Sally McCombs with a 448, Chris Nichols with a 421 and Jill Bollenbacher rounding off third place with a 392 in the high series.

Taking time to think is very important in the sport of bowling, and Greg Buuck takes the time to demonstrate this.

A running start helps out a lot as Sally McCombs prepares to let the bowling ball go.

AV Workers (top to bottom): Anthony Hart, Brian Kennedy, Allen Herring, Lynn Crockett, Darren Heim, Ron Crockett, Chris Storn, and Bob Bercot

Sophomore Chris Storn checks over a movie before taking it up to the science wing where it is scheduled to be shown.

AV Workers Indispensable

Not many people realize it, but without the AV members our classes and our education at Elmhurst would be extremely handicapped. The students that work in the audio-visual department are responsible for setting up TV monitors, showing movies, providing the lighting and sound for all of the assemblies, putting on the backstage half production of the school plays and recently video taping skits by the foreign language classes.

Many things lie in store for Elmhurst in the area of advanced audio and visual effects. Students can look forward to the day when the announcements in the morning will be broadcast over a television monitor. "It may be a few years from now, but it is definitely on the horizon," projected sophomore Chris Storn.

The AV team was under the direction of Mr. Charles Kaymeyer this year.

Is sophomore Allen Herring really watching cartoons? No one knows for sure but AV work keeps him totally enthralled.

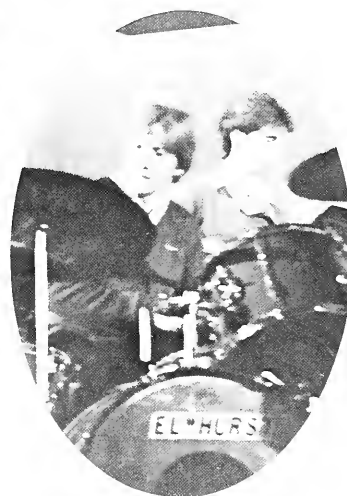

Playing jazz is what a jazz band does best as presented by a member of the Maynard Ferguson Band.

Playing bass for Ferguson might be a dream for Gaster Firrie, but this musician does it for a living.

Jazz band members agree that the traditional time of the Jazz Festival is also a time for reflections.

For Jeff Fritz and Barry Bender the bear is always going on as EHS Three O'clock Jazz Band rehearses.

Senior Erik Eirman gives his performance its all as his rap-note style adds to the EHS Jazz Band.

Junior Dave Miller best displays his musical side, talents and expertise when playing the sax.

Not to be outdone, sophomore Chris Bishop shows his dedication to his instrument.

Special talent and expertise in the center spotlight.

Giving it all they've got, the festival was made something to remember by this year's band.

Festival 14 Success

"One two three o'clock — three o'clock jazz." This familiar tune was whistled by many Jazz Band members as they attended their three o'clock rehearsals this year under the direction of a talented new conductor, Mr. Harry Bryant. Mr. Bryant led the band through a full year's schedule of contests, performances, and the outstanding annual Jazz Festival number 14. The festival this year was highlighted with main attraction Maynard Ferguson and his orchestra as a special attraction. During the weekend of the festival Steve Zegree, director of the Western Michigan University Gold Company, conducted a vocal and jazz clinic and rehearsal for the students and then performed himself in the nightly activities held in the auditorium.

The Jazz Band also did extremely well in contests held this year. One contest in particular, they competed in the Perry Meridian Jazz Festival in Indianapolis and brought home four of the six awards presented.

The Life of a Speaker

Bzzzzzz! Silently your eyes open. It's five a.m. on Saturday morning and you have to get up and get dressed. Today is just like every other Saturday for a speech team member. While countless other Trojans are snoozing or watching cartoons, the speech team travels to such distant lands as Ohio. A typical Saturday begins bright and early at Mr. Donut, where members gather to grab a hot chocolate and maybe a cream puff if they remembered their money. As the morning progresses, each member travels to other high schools to present a speech that, if they're lucky, they will give four more times during the afternoon.

Why do they do it? Are they crazed maniacs? Do they find hidden pleasure by giving up half of their weekend? Or, do they just enjoy communicating with people and meeting prospective friends and dates. The speech team is for everyone, not just a select few.

"The way I see it, being a member of the speech team is a valuable experience. Most people think that giving a speech is either hard to do or is a pain in the neck. In my opinion, giving speeches is a way to express yourself and the fun part is that you receive ribbons and trophies," expressed sophomore Mott Miller.

Speech team captain Manica Daran contemplates how well the 1982-83 team will do at regionals.

Performing extraordinary techniques of control and muscle relaxation is essential for any speech team member, as demonstrated by junior Jim Grady.

Being the sponsor of the Forum Club is a job that Mr. Storey relishes as shown here by his helpful attitude towards sophomore Mory Kohrman.

Speech Team (top to bottom) Monica Daran, Jeanne Fowerbaugh, Barb Krieg, Robin Hall, Kim Riley, Matt Miller, Mory Kohrman, Rhonda Reynolds, Ido Glaser, Jim Grady, Andy Aylor, and Chris Young.

After a year of looking for the elevator and being told by seniors that Mr. Beal's room was right next door to the office, the sophomore class came out of hibernation and took command.

Sophomores participated heavily in many extracurricular activities. The majority of the boys' soccer club, varsity tennis and varsity cross country teams were composed of sophomores. Sophomore boys also played a major role in football, track, basketball, and golf.

Boys weren't the only ones participating in sports. Sophomore girls also contributed greatly in such sports as volleyball, cross country, basketball, gymnastics and track.

Besides their great accomplishments in sports, sophomores do have other things to be proud of according to Principal Richard Horstmeyer. "The extracurricular achievements of the sophomore class are great but they should be proud of their academic achievements too. The number of students on the Principal's List and honor roll is always large and their contribution to the academics of our school is very impressive."

Sophomore Spirit!

The sophomore class of '85 showed off some of their school pride during spirit week.

"I thought spirit week was great! It seemed like more students participated in it this year," stated sophomore Rhonda Reynolds.

For the second year in a row the class of '85 won the hall decorations while making a respectable floor. "It was real fun working on the floor and hall," sophomore Mary Kahrman said.

While many sophomore football players battled against Wayne High School, the homecoming court awaited the crowning of the queen. The sophomore court was composed of Marcy Aldridge, Jean Arend, and Mary Kahrman. Spirit week was capped off with the homecoming dance.

Warm Winter Weather Has Certain Disadvantages

"What happened to school vacation due to snow and high water?" queried one sophomore who was trapped in geometry class on a 70-degree day in March.

Sophomores are quickly realizing that there are certain disadvantages of "mild winters." Besides not missing school, there are some other problems. One of these would be getting a good spot in the courtyard to catch some sun. "I've found that the only way to get my favorite spot to catch rays is to skip lunch!" exclaimed Karen Brezette.

Another problem is doing homework. "I usually study basketball and soccer on warm days, instead of chemistry," said sophomore Matt Miller.

As a whole most students of EHS liked the winter of 82-83, even though it was warm.

Looking to the Future

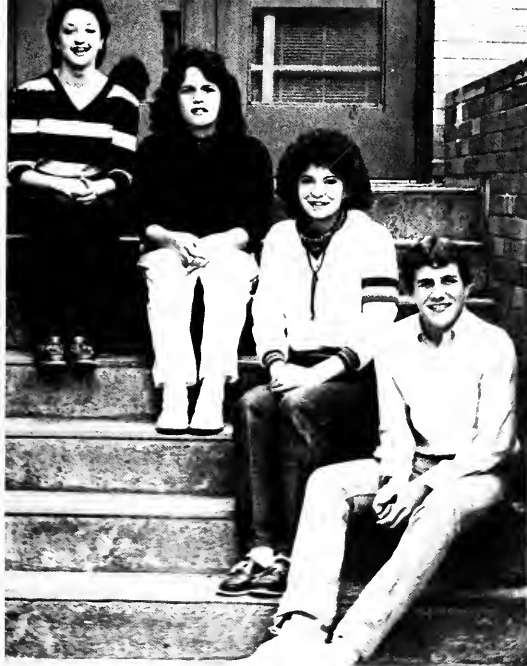

As the saying goes, "Time flies when you're having fun." Sophomores are coming to the end of their second year in high school and beginning to look to the future.

Students who are interested in going to college are beginning to consider universities they might want to attend. To better prepare themselves, sophomores are taking classes in math, science, and English.

For the students not interested in attending college, the regional vocational school offers many opportunities for job placement. The vocational school offers classes in mechanics, business and areas in the medical field.

Sophs Find Friend!

When things get rough and you don't know what to do it's nice to have a good friend to help you out. The sophomore class made a new friend this year as Mr. Alvin Harris became sophomore counselor.

Mr. Harris is kept quite busy since, as he stated, "Sophomores are extremely energetic!" Mr. Harris is interested in the students' education and future goals. Often he assists them by giving guidance, information and use of the computer to pick out the college that suits their goals.

Although much of his day is spent with problems related to education, he doesn't forget students' personal problems. He is willing to give advice and if he can't help you he'll get someone who can.

The sophomore class is very fortunate to have a concerned counselor, but more importantly, to have a friend.

Okay, they'll admit it. They've done good. They don't know how what they've done will compare with the future, but right now ... well, the juniors deserve a pat on the back.

In their first year or Elmhurst, 1980-81, the freshman boys' football squad was unbeaten and unscored upon. And that year's girls' track team had a relay squad composed of some freshmen, a squad that went on to place fourth of 56 at state competition.

And sports aren't all. They have had members of their class on the speech team, in plays, and in the band, which in their freshman year placed high in competition scoring.

Juniors helped as sophomores with the unforgettable Flood of '82, which received a write-up in Reader's Digest for the outstanding youth participation.

This year, juniors participated actively in AFS, Afro-American Club, TAB, Campus Life, Cheerleading, COE, Trojan Singers, Trojan Takedowns, Red Coat Club, Diamond Devils, Student Council, Women Mentors, Forum Club, Bowling Club, DECA, Quill and Scroll, VICA, Audio-Visual, Elmhurst-Luers Hockey Club, sports, and the band.

High honors have found the juniors in sports this year, too. Phil LeMaster made the SAC cross country team and set up records here at Elmhurst. And this year's girls' varsity basketball team is more than half juniors, and they set up records when they beat Huntington Catholic 98-27. Those records included largest point margin (71) and most points scored (98).

The juniors can't say for sure that what they have done won't be done better someday, or the records they set won't be broken someday, or that the memories they have won't be replaced someday. But they can say that while they were here, boy, were they good!

That Junior Style!

Styles come and styles go, just like months on a calendar, but popularity doesn't depend on time.

Clothes are always important when one wants to be in style. Shoes made by Bass, Candies, Quoodies, or Sporto are always popular, and jeans by Calvin Klein, Sergio Valente, L. L. Bean, and Levi were seen on every EHS junior.

Most juniors had to have an Izod, Polo, Chaps, or Hunter's Run sportshirt, and Aigner belts, shoes, and purses complemented junior girls' wardrobes.

Wool sweaters with one's initials or a Jacquard pattern were another definite. Designs of snowflakes, reindeer, and other wintry things were icing on the cake, and if a girl had a pin fashioned into her initials, then everything was complete.

Speech became important, too. Like all the various forms of slang, styles came and went. From "gag me with a spoon" to "you toastie," juniors were ready with a comeback to anything possibly said to them. An average conversation would be filled with various phrases and words, and if anyone had just been transferred through time from the 1950's or '60's, he would have been dumbfounded.

Certain activities were "in" too, such as skiing, parties at the lake, Your Place, the Casbah, and any EHS sponsored dance. Any student attending one or more of these events was instantly a part of the popular crowd, just for showing up.

Styles and fads ... sweaters with little designs ... Asahi sneakers ... "valleygirl" talk ... the color purple ... dances at EHS ... basketball games ... initials ... reindeer ... snowflakes ... all of it held a certain status for the class of '84.

But no matter how trivial things were in a fad, they had to be perfected. From the Aigner "A" on one's shoes to the antlers of the reindeer on one's wool sweater, being in style meant a lot.

Juniors Join In on the Jubilation

From punks to pajamas, spirit week was a hit at Elmhurst. Junior participation was noted throughout the halls as everyone joined the activities. Monday, Swears day, had joggers and Richard Simmons' fans exercising in the halls. Tuesday, Nerd or Clash day, had EHS looking like a Salvation Army drop box. Wednesday was Pajamas day, and everything from nealgies to Doctor Dentons appeared, and also toothbrushes, hair curlers, teddy bears, and morning papers. Thursday turned out to be one of the most popular, as Punk day. Students wore costumes that Adam and the Ants or the B-52's would appreciate. Friday was the traditional Red and Gray day and with it was Hat and Sucker day. Crunching Trojans were everywhere, as was obvious by the multitude of hats worn.

The halls were decorated, and for once not torn down by 2:35 Friday. The sophomore class won the competition, but the juniors gave them a close race.

On Friday was the pep session, a rowdy explosion that everyone participated in. Of course, junior participation was by far the most enthusiastic...

Before the game Friday, students met at EHS to decorate their cars and form a caravan to drive to Wayne. Many students showed up and even if the wind blew off most of the toilet paper and balloons, everyone had a good time.

EHS lost to Wayne, 14-7 in the Homecoming game, and good sports that we are, we invited the Generals to the dance festivities.

The week turned out to be one of EHS' finest, with support from both the students and the faculty.

Conversing Quite Academically

Academics play a major part in the daily life at Elmhurst. After all, if it weren't for the academics, Elmhurst would just be another big, empty building, and none of the students would be here to make it what it is.

Juniors have a strong academic schedule this year, from the required United States history to the personal-choice classes like body building and foreign languages. The junior year is the year when students begin to consider their grade point average and class rank instead of how many days till spring break (although juniors still count down the days!).

Juniors have the uncanny ability to generally succeed in any area they set their minds to. An approximate average of 15 juniors per grade period have made Principal's List since their start as freshmen, not to mention the dozens more on Honor Roll each time.

With their final year at Elmhurst approaching, the juniors are leaving their academic marks behind, along with the best of 'em. They may not always show it, but speaking academically, they know their academics!

Showing Off the Athletic Side

Although it's not unusual for such a well-rounded class to pass through Elmhurst, the class of '84, it seems, is doing so with flair. They've shown everyone that they can succeed, no matter what the circumstances are. Whether it's the Flood of '82, the biannual S.R.A. tests, or going to the regional championship in basketball, the juniors are ready, willing, and able.

And speaking of the regional boys' basketball finals, this year's Trojans showed Fort Wayne that E.T. did exist out off Ardmore Avenue somewhere. The team drew Fort Wayne Christian in the first round, and beat them, 73-32. After that they had to play Snider, and in one of the most exciting games ever, beat the Panthers, 71-69, in two overtimes. From there they beat Woodlan, 66-64, and had to face Northrop. After a rousing pep session Friday, E.T. faced the Bruins, only to be defeated, 54-67. Juniors Mark Redding, Ty Cook, Lee Moore, and Tony Bates participated on the squad, which finished the season with a 9-11 record.

This year's girls' basketball squad was hot, too. They set records in several areas after posting a 98-27 victory over Huntington Catholic. The girls were strong in the S.A.C. tourney, but fell in sectionals. The team was comprised of juniors and underclassmen.

Football was plagued by injuries, player-coach disputes, and plain and simple bad luck. They finished their season 2-8, and vowed to come back stronger than ever next year.

Junior Phil LeMaster set his personal school records in cross country this year. Phil's ability put him on the all-S.A.C. team, and he is going to be a strong part of the squad next year.

The golfers and tennis players were strong too, as were the girls' cross country and volleyball teams and both track squads.

The Trojans have proved over and over again that they aren't a long-lost, forgotten member of F.W.C.S., but a living, breathing, red and gray E.T.

Michele Metzger shows her outstanding poise and finesse on the beam.

FINALLY Just One More

Here it is. A lot of them have been waiting for this a long time, but the juniors are finally to the point where there is just one more year. Just one more . . .

This past year has given them a lot of memories, memories that they'll treasure forever. From the outbreak of measles at Indiana University to the annual Mop, memories formed from day one.

There was always something going on for the juniors. Candy sales, prom commitments, and class meetings were on everyone's mind as May grew closer. Plans were completed, and everyone breathed a sigh of relief as they realized things were going to be terrific.

The class of '84 saw a lot in their first three years, and will see a lot in their last year, too. But all the time they'll be thinking "just one more . . ."

Shaw Works on Goals

Even though it is Mr. Allen Shaw's first year at Elmhurst as a teacher, he already considers it to be his "home away from home," partly because of the relaxed atmosphere and lack of pressure.

Mr. Shaw teaches orchestra, auxiliary choir, concert choir, Trojan Singers, and color guard. This year the orchestra has had three concerts and also accompanied the musical.

This helped to achieve one of Mr. Shaw's goals. When he arrived at Elmhurst he decided that he wanted to accompany a musical. Well, mark one off his list anyway.

Another of his goals would be to instill the knowledge that music is more than just singing, but working together too. He feels that this is an integral part of his teaching.

Also, Trojan Singers travelled to Western Michigan University to perform. In addition, they sang on a morning breakfast show at radio station WAFX. Finally, the Trojan Singers performed as the opening act of the EHS Jazz Festival.

Another one of Mr. Shaw's goals is to get an extra choir organized. EHS now has three choirs, but he would prefer four. It would be similar to a Trojan Singers' training group. Students would start in that class, then move up to the Trojan Singers.

Freshman Deborah Elms contributes her part to the orchestra practice.

Mr. Shaw works on keeping everyone playing to the same beat.

Karen Brezette smiles to herself as she listens to her spectacular piano playing techniques.

Chrissy Code concentrates on staying in key during a concert choir rehearsal.

Chad Vizzini and Chrissy Rule are determined to perfect their music with the exception of a few squeaks every once in a while.

Sophomore Jeff Hamm probably never thought that he'd be caught using a few skills, such as paper cutting, that were taught in kindergarten.

Arts Receive Recognition

This year alone, students have won over $12,000 worth of art related awards. This sum includes at least three scholarships; Rita Campbell, David Manter, and Ted Gaal. Rita will be attending Saint Francis College for art on a four-year scholarship. She won it for only one photograph. David Manter and Ted Gaal, joining 5 other EHS students who won scholarships there will both be attending the Columbus School of Art on scholarships. Also, Tracy Richardson will be going to Brooks Institute of Photography and Science, which is one of the top five colleges of photography in the country.

Mr. Don Goss is very pleased with all the honors his students have received this year. He says, "Everyone must do a little on their own, you can't just set back and expect the work to get done." Mr. Goss was also noted saying, "We have done exceptionally well at the Regional Scholastic Art Awards held at L.S. Ayres this year." From there twenty-one pieces of art will be in the national (New York) show.

Marcy Aldridge concentrates on getting just the right look with the paper in art class.

Mr. Goss stands for a moment in thought before launching into yet another of his philosophical speeches.

Start the Presses

During the school year it seemed that room 108 was where all the action was. A constant flow of traffic and mouths kept things moving.

The feud between yearbookers and newspaper people remained steady. At deadline time the crossfire increased as everyone fought for the use of photographers and typewriters. Despite the rivalry, both staffs felt at home together digging up facts, and putting them onto a written page.

One difficulty that confronted the yearbook staff and newspaper staff was meeting the deadlines. But with the nudging of Mrs. Hoylman, publications advisor, Michelle McNamara, newspaper editor, and Maureen Landrigan, yearbook editor, things worked out.

RVS Offers On-the-Job Training

Vocational training through the Fort Wayne Regional Vocational School includes areas of interest for both girls and boys. Students spent one half day at Elmhurst studying the required courses, and the remaining half day at the Regional Center at on-the-job training.

Occupational programs varied from constructional crafts, automobiles and electronics to food service, beauty culture, child care, horticulture and data processing. Students were awarded up to three credits per semester for successful performance in these programs.

Juniors Lisa Mills and Kim Wagner show their skills in data processing.

Senior James Kelsa and junior Kirk Eberly learn some pointers about automobiles.

Although EHS'ers trudged into fall and plugged through winter, they had quite another experience when it came to spring. As the winter activities climaxed and ended and the spring activities grew nearer, many students came to the realization that warmer weather was just around the corner — well, maybe. Even though in early March the temperature reached the mid-seventies it didn't stay for long. Snow and rain dampened the spirit of the students and teachers but the satisfaction of knowing the termination of yet another school year could not be put off kept them going, and before they knew it they had been flung into spring and all her many activities.

Revealing their character's personality with their stance, the cast of "David and Lisa" pose for a final curtain call.

"David and Lisa" a Big Hit

From a popular novel by the prominent psychiatrist Theodore Isaac Rubin to an award-winning motion picture, "David and Lisa" has now been adapted for the stage. It tells the story of two mentally disturbed adolescents: David, the only son of wealthy parents, over-protected by a domineering mother, who is tortured by his phobia against being touched; and Lisa, the child-like girl who has never known parental love, who has developed a split personality and is in effect two different girls, one of whom speaks only in childish rhymes and insists upon being spoken to in the same manner.

The play focuses on David and Lisa during the course of one term at Berkley School for the Mentally Disturbed, where they have come under the guidance of Dr. Alan Swinford and his staff, along with their fellow students. The play was staged with a fairly new technique — all of the props were on stage throughout the entire performance, with the characters simply moving from one setting to the next. There were four performances for the public, two the weekend of April 22 and two the weekend of April 29.

The leads were played by seniors Joel Heim and John Hermes, and sophomore Rhonda Reynolds. To make their performance as realistic as possible, the entire cast visited the Fort Wayne State Mental Hospital and Training Center. According to director Shelley Wellington, the play was popular with both the audience and the cast.

"The performance was intense, which was appropriate to the subject. I especially liked the contrast between the patients, with Christy Peters (as Josette) sobbing on one side of the stage while John Hermes and Rhonda Reynolds (David and Lisa) sat on the other side of the stage talking," said Mrs. Wellington of the performance. "To add a new twist, the two male leads (Joel Heim and John Hermes) switched roles for one performance, which resulted in a better performance the next night. All the performances were a success, even though the audiences were fairly small and consisted mainly of parents. I wish more students would come."

Carol Tonn is overwhelmed as she is crowned by her predecessor, Chrissy Morel.

The 1983 Prom was held at the Performing Arts Center where many hours were spent by the junior class decorating for scenes such as this.

Sophomore Lisa Ybarra and junior Todd Blough hold hands as they await the start of the evening.

“Just You and I . . .”

Class meetings, committee meetings, sponsor meetings — for awhile the junior class wondered if it would ever end. Class officers were called out of classes to visit with printers, florists, and the directors of the Performing Arts Center before they could relax and await the approach of their prom.

Entitled “Just You and I” after the popular song by Eddie Rabbitt and Crystal Gayle, the 1983 prom was held amidst ivy and soft lights in the downtown Performing Arts Center.

The court members were announced during school, but the king and queen were kept secret. Finally, the moment arrived and the new king and queen were Steve Finken and Carol Tonn, who took over from last year’s king and queen, Jim Foreman and Chrissy Morel.

The 1983 prom was a success, despite the worries of the junior class and their sponsors.

good-day, good-night, good-morrow GOODBYE

*A little work, a little play,
To keep us going —
and so good-day.*

*A little warmth, a little light
Of love's bestowing —
and so good-night.*

*A little fun to match the sorrow
Of each day's growing — and so good-morrow.*

*A little trust that when we die
We reap our sowing! And so — goodbye.*

Tracksters Get Surprises

Senior Mike West practices the up and over technique of jumping the high hurdles.

LeMaster, Kruse, West, Quake, Ottley, Stinson, Jordan. Row 4: Drennon, Turner, Kelso, Wallace, Barker, Ringer, Birch, Scott, Dowdell. Row 5: Surface, Smith, Bates, Watson, Walker.

“We accomplished what we thought we could and also had some pleasant surprises. Some of the accomplishments were James Kelso in the 100, Joe Birch returning after his knee injury, Phil LeMaster and Tom Stinson in the distances, Mike West in the high and low hurdles, and the 400 relay team,” stated Coach Chuck Kammeyer.

The 400 relay team, consisting of Derrick Minniefield, Dennis Lee, Teddy Hall, and James Kelso were sectional champs and state contenders placing fourth. Kelso also qualified for state competition in the 100 meter dash and earned a strong fourth.

Records set or broken this year were Mike West in the low hurdles, breaking his own record from last year with a 38.6, James Kelso in the 100 with a 10.5 and the 400 relay team who broke the record from last year with a 42.6.

“We had a good year for the potential we had. The program is still developing and we have strong people coming back next year,” concluded Coach Kammeyer.

Leaping ahead of the others is Ted Hall.

Wearing a knee brace due to injury sustained in football senior Joe Birch throws the shot put.

With a sigh of exhaustion, junior Tony Bates hands the baton to his teammate, senior Mike West.

Girls Volley to 4-11 Season

An opponent waits to make a return on a power serve from junior Debbie Kohrman.

Beal, Laura Bower, Debbie Kohrman, Julie Burt, Sheila Spear, Julie Rinard, Marie Heiney, Lisa Mullins.

It was a long season for Elmhurst's girls' tennis team, as they finished at 4-11.

The season began miserably as the Trojans were faced with bad weather to practice in, but this didn't dampen the spirits of the team. Clad in their new uniforms, the Trojans started the year with an uncertain outlook but desirable intentions. Uncertainty was because of the loss of four varsity players who graduated, and due to the adjustments for a new coach. John Beal took over making him the fourth coach in as many years.

After bad weather at the beginning, the girls were involved in constant competition due to the rescheduling of several matches. Elmhurst lost its season opener to Snider, but then defeated Huntington. Things didn't go the Trojans' way though, as they lost their next five games. Wins were chalked up against Adams Central, Carroll, and Whitko, but they lost to Wayne in the sectionals.

Making a return is junior Julie Rinard, who was the number one singles player for Elmhurst

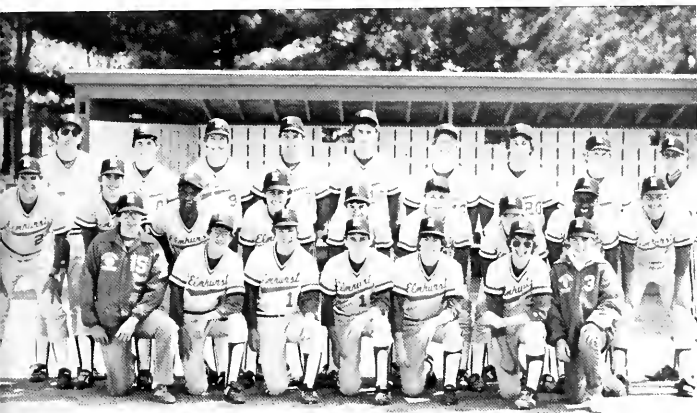

Coach Paul Berryshire, in his classic position, becomes an attraction.

Junior Ernie Farias rounds third heading for home.

Junior Dave Bone takes a mighty cut. In the sectional he blasted two homers.

'Big Red Machine' Captures Title

Baseball in the Summit City centered around the Trojans in 1983. Elmhurst possessed possibly the best all-around team in the state with the pitching, the fielding, and the power to win the state. They came just a bit short.

The Trojans captured the sectional 14-5 barrage against Columbia City. Elmhurst then played Northrop in the regional and ironically lost it in a tough pitching duel. The Trojan bats were stopped and Elmhurst lost a tough one, 2-1. Northrop went on to win the state, but it didn't seem fair that after a season like Elmhurst had, the Trojans had to end at 26-6. Earlier in the year, the "Big Red Machine" defeated Northrop, but due to some tough luck the Trojans couldn't pull it off.

Leading the pack, freshman Diana Everette played a major part of this year's team.

Up and over, freshman Shelley Bonahoom appears to be in control of her race.

Sophomore Lena Williams gets set and ready to throw the shot put.

Records Are Made To Be Broken

Girls Track — First Row: B. Krieg, D. Bright, M. Dixie, Second Row: L. Tatum, A. Freygang, S. Jones, L. Williams, L. Bowen, J. Minniefield. Third Row: C. Bower, R. Linneaeier,

C. Knight, D. Everette, C. Davis. Fourth Row: V. Rhoda, L. Smith, M. Booker, Coach K. Eytcheson, Coach S. Dowling, Coach D. Fox, C. Lee, M. Magdich, S. Bonahoom.

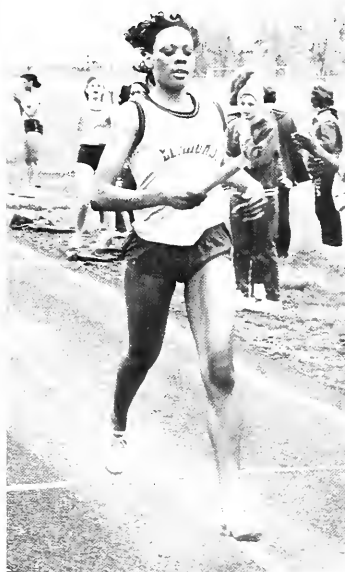

Junior Cheryl Davis races for the finish line in the 400 meter run. Davis went to State in the discus throw.

Sophomore Samantha Jones crosses the finish line first. Jones also went to State this year, competing in the 400-meter dash.

Yes, records are made to be broken, and here at EHS that's exactly what the lady Trojan track team did. This year four records were either broken or reset. The girls fell just under a .500 season, by posting a 7-9 record, with a sixth place finish in the SAC. But Head Coach Sue Dowling commented, "We lost a lot of meets by just a couple of points that could have easily been made up by a girl placing third or fourth." The lady Trojans really improved, as they went from 3-13 in '82 to 7-9 in '83.

In Sectionals the Trojans had two champions, junior Cheryl Davis and sophomore Samantha Jones. Davis and Jones both went to State but didn't come away with a place.

Many members of the team will be back, so things are looking up for the girls' track team in the spring of '84. Coach Dowling adds, "If we continue to improve our times and distances, plus advance more people to Regional, we could really be a power in track, and next year I think we have the talent to do it."

Golf Team Heading for Climax

From 0-23 in '81 to 2-21 a year ago, to this year's record of 8-17-1, the EHS golf team has been steadily improving. The golf team placed third in the Wayne Invitational and placed tenth in the sectional. Coach Nicholas Werling commented, "The team has been improving in the last couple of years and I think we're definitely going to be a power next year." Members of the team with good records were junior Kirk Stewart 11-10, Michael Kitch 11-11, Jim Grady 10-15, Andy Aylor 5-17, sophomores Matt Till 10-10 and Steve Morel. "With all team members returning next year," Coach Werling added, "we'll have three of the best golfers in the city along with team balance and depth. We should be in the running for the SAC and sectional titles."

Members of the Trojan golf team take practice putts at Brookwood, before sectional competition.

In Sectional game, junior Kirk Stewart showed everyone his stuff.

Aiming to move the ball to a teammate is junior Stan Nesler.

The Trojan soccer team practices on the Elmhurst field.

Practicing his basic soccer skills is senior Chuc Standiford.

One on one is the name of the game between seniors Chris Miller and Chris Morken.

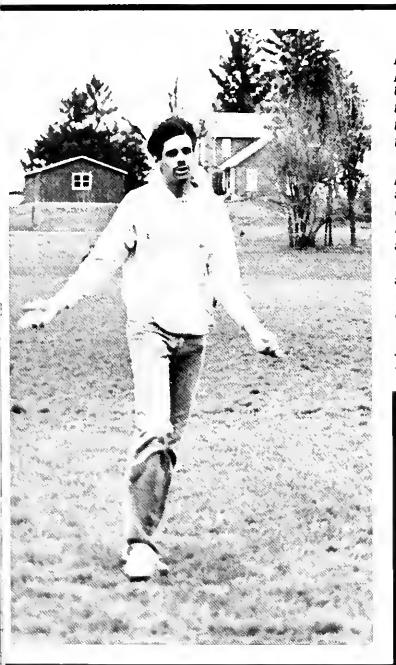

Giving helpful hints to sophomore Barry Ross, in hope of improving his game, is coach Mark Garcia.

Junior Brad Hart listens intently as the referee gives words of warning to a Wayne High School team member, during a game.

Team Lacks Participants

The soccer club at Elmhurst competed in only its fourth year of league play with a final record of 1-8-1. But with the experience of a disappointing season the team now realizes that it's going to take next year to have a winning record.

The lack of depth on the bench affected the season because there was a small turnout. "We also lacked leadership because of work commitments of the coaches," commented sophomore Matt Miller.

This year the coaching duty was shared evenly by Dean Maier, Mark Garcia, and Dean Ross, all of whom were graduated from Elmhurst.

The soccer team now looks to next year in hope of a much more rewarding season.

"Why me?" asks coach Dean Maier.

Sectionals Fill Year

What a year Elmhurst had in sports! The Trojans enjoyed a great balance of success throughout year, which hasn't been the usual happening. Unlike this year, Elmhurst would sparkle in two or three sports for the year. But for 1982-1983 Elmhurst did well from September to June, in both the girls' and boys' programs.

The outlook for success wasn't evident at the beginning though, as the fall sports were nil in chalking up a lot of wins. For the football team, there was a flash of brilliance. After being 5-5 for 1981, Elmhurst was suddenly ranked seventeenth in the state for 1982. They got a shot at playing the number one team in the state, Indianapolis North Central, and lost 27-0. Nevertheless, Elmhurst did look good. This wasn't to last long, as the team suddenly self-destructed with injuries and other personal mishaps. So, the team ended the season very disappointingly at 2-8.

The boys' cross-country squad enjoyed a 6-5 season. It was the first winning season in five years for that sport at Elmhurst.

Then winter sports set in. It was a mild winter, but Elmhurst stormed through competition and left its mark. For the Trojan basketball team, it was the total opposite pre-season billing that the football team had. It looked bleak, no big rankings for the basketball team. In fact they were being picked to hold up the SAC conference in last place. It didn't turn out that way by any means!

brought an 8-12 record into sectional play, and the Trojans went on to defeat Fort Wayne Christian, Snider, and ACAC champion Woodlan to capture the sectional title. The Trojans lost to Northrop in the regionals, but it had been a long eleven years since the last sectional title. 1982 — a great year for Dan Wilson, and the Trojan basketball team.

Elmhurst Led by New Coach Wilson

On May 10, 1982, it was announced that Mr. Daniel Wilson would be taking over one of the most important positions in Elmhurst sports — head basketball coach.

It was a shock to many people, as it was thought that the job would be handled by one of the assistant coaches. After the initial clamorings of such an announcement, people inquired as to who Mr. Wilson was and where did he come from? Mr. Wilson came to Elmhurst from South Side, where he had been an assistant coach and a teacher. He was 36, father of two, and a former student at Taylor and Purdue Universities. His role at Elmhurst also included teaching biology.

Mr. Wilson was accepted by Elmhurst, but now he had to prove himself to the critics and the rest of Elmhurst. Coach Wilson took over a post that was made legendary in Trojan history by Ken Eytcheson. Mr. Eytcheson had coached for twenty-three years, eighteen of them at Elmhurst. The veteran coach brought a sectional title to Elmhurst in 1971, and was one of the most respected coaches in this part of Indiana. After recent frustrating years, especially in 1981, Eytcheson resigned.

It was now Dan Wilson's team, and the 1982 season would be unforgettable for Elmhurst. The season began with an almost unanimous decision by the media, that the Trojans would finish last in the SAC conference. But the charismatic, personable new coach applied his savvy and game plan to prove the media wrong, to almost a point of embarrassment.

The Trojans battled, and at times they looked like the worst team in the city and other moments they looked unbeatable. Elmhurst ne Trojans finished the regular season out strongly and took an 8-12 record into sectional play. After dramatic wins over Snider and Goodlan, it happened — Elmhurst won the sectional! Northrop beat them in the regional, but for the team with a rookie coach, that was expected to finish last, the Cinderella saga became a reality! "Sectionalitis" also afflicted the fledgling team. The Trojans finished 7-4-1 and captured a sectional title for the second straight year.

The girls basketball team also stepped into the spotlight, as the girls compiled an impressive 14-8 record, the best in history. The gymnastics team was 9-6 on the year, doing very well. What a great winter! Success didn't stop there. With all the joys of spring came more winning. The boys' track team finished 13-3 for a great season, and went on to place twentieth in the state. Vast improvements for the golf team led to an 8-17-1 record. This isn't so impressive in itself, but it was a tremendous turnaround for the golf program.

One more sectional title was won for Elmhurst; this one came from the Trojans' awesome baseball team. The "Big Red Machine" won their third sectional in four years, and nearly won the regional but lost to state champion Northrop, 2-1. The Trojans finished a super year at 16-6.

Three sectional titles and a lot of excitement was the product of Elmhurst's successful sports program for 1982-1983. It was truly fantastic!

Welborn Resigns

After four years as head football coach, Mr. Jim Welborn resigned the post in 1982.

During his four year reign, Coach Welborn won twelve and lost seventeen. He experienced his best days early in his years as head coach. In 1979, the Trojans finished only 4-5, but they did play in the SAC championship against North Side. Elmhurst lost 22-6. From there, Welborn's team went to 1-9 in 1980, and in 1981 the Trojans brought their record back up to 5-5.

In 1982, Coach Welborn's last season, it was truly a disappointing one. Elmhurst was touted as one of the best in the state, but soon the Trojans left this behind as many starters were lost to injuries — thus they ended the year at 2-8. Mr. Welborn put in his resignation, citing the desire to spend more time with his family as a major deciding factor. Mr. Welborn coached collegiate stars Scott Auer, Terry Green, and Chris Van Pelt at Elmhurst.

Duane Rowe Fills A. D. Position

The position of Athletic Director was taken over by Mr. Duane Rowe in 1982. Mr. Rowe replaced Mr. Paul Bienz, who retired after nine years.

Coming over from Wayne, where he was also Athletic Director, Mr. Rowe had a rich sports background. During his high school and college years at Manchester College, Mr. Rowe played football, baseball, basketball. He then went on to coach track and cross country at South Bend Central High School. He coached the track team there to a state championship. In 1963, he came to Fort Wayne's North Side

High School. There, he coached the cross country team to a runner-up title in 1965, the same year he was named Coach of the Year. In 1968, his team won the state championship. When Wayne was complete, he was transferred there.

Success Is a Business

DECA (Distributive Educational Clubs of America) is best known as an educational group that helps students prepare for the business world. DECA also teaches students about the American free enterprise system in class work and on-the-job training. This year DECA sponsored a Super-Dance that was extremely successful with other high school DECA programs as well as with Elmhurst itself.

On-the-job training is also important to help students prepare for the future in the business clubs of COE (Cooperative Office Education) and OEA (Office Education Association). Special events, such as a Christmas breakfast were held and the students involved in COE and DECA were very successful in the business contests held for members and a few of the students advanced to contests of a state level.

Trojan Singers, Redcoats

Both the Redcoat club and the Trojan Singers work together in a sense, because during a Trojan Singer performance the Redcoats are needed to hand out programs and regulate seating.

This year the Trojan Singers were under the direction of Mr. Allen Shaw and the choir has expanded to 20 people. The choir has traveled to such far away places as Oakland University Jazz Festival in addition to performing in school related activities.

The Redcoats are managed by Mrs. Pat Gentile and are always present at school functions to distribute programs, give tours to people who are unfamiliar with Elmhurst, or to just chat with parents at back-to-school night.

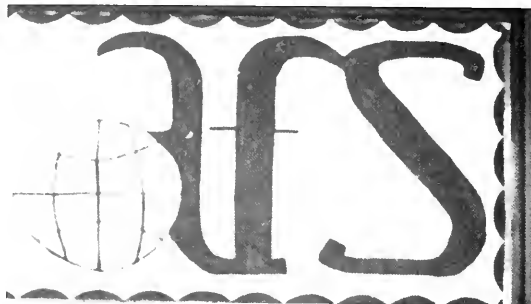

Senior Jeanne Fowerbaugh mentally prepares for the Trojan Singers performance in a few hours.

Hall, Hunnemeyer Hosted

Elmhurst was the proud host school this year for two very outstanding, unique exchange students. Steina Hall, an AFS representative, came here for the entire school year from Reykjavik, Iceland, where she lives with her parents and one older sister. She had a host family with sophomore Mary Kohrman and junior Debbie Kohrman. The other exchange student, Anne Hunnemeyer, came to America through AIFS from Germany. She was hosted by the family of junior Andrea Gordon and senior Kathy Gordon.

The EHS chapter of AFS was headed by senior Jeanne Fowerbaugh in the position of president, Cathy Walters as vice president, Lilly Lyon as social chairman, Kim Riley as secretary and Chris Adams as treasurer.

The AFS potluck offered many surprise dishes and Christy Peters, Lisa Smith, Cathy Peters and Angie Smith were just the people to try them out.

Lilly Lyon expresses her happiness at not only being an AFS member, but social chairman as well.

Juniors Richie Neuhaus, Kirk Stewart, and Doug Everette, show it doesn't take too much effort to pay attention in French class.

During the foreign language party, everybody jumps into the fun.

While making a piñata, sophomore Karen Brezette shows the easy one-two steps of putting it all together.

teinmann Hall, an exchange student from Iceland, reads aloud how she enjoys Elmhurst.

Foreign Languages

Languages offered to Elmhurst students are Spanish, French, and German. The one class that is taken up most by the student body is Spanish with 124 enrolled. Following Spanish is French with 115 students. And finally German, with 53 students enrolled.

In the foreign language department a different activity was added. Students from other schools were brought to Elmhurst to learn a language of their choice. With the great help and participation of the students and teachers, the project became a huge success.

People usually say that taking a foreign language at Elmhurst adds a different "spunk" during the school day.

Some German students perform Christmas play in the party.

Working with Portage Middle School language students, Mrs. Delores Banks teaches them the art of conversing in French.

No Pain, No Gain!

Physical education in high schools is far more challenging to students than were gym classes in their elementary days. In high school, gym isn't the class to get dressed in those funny blue jumpsuits. Nor is it the class to play with the parachute. It's a class of participation and mobility of each student.

Lack of participation and effort can make a student's grade very low. He is graded upon how much effort is put into each project.

Body building is more of an in-depth class of physical education. It is offered to students who are willing to shape their bodies more firmly and stronger. This class is usually taken by athletes of both sexes.

Junior Allen Rife shows great muscle power in lifting 250 pounds on the bench press.

Mrs. Dowling, physical education teacher, looks among her students while taking roll call.

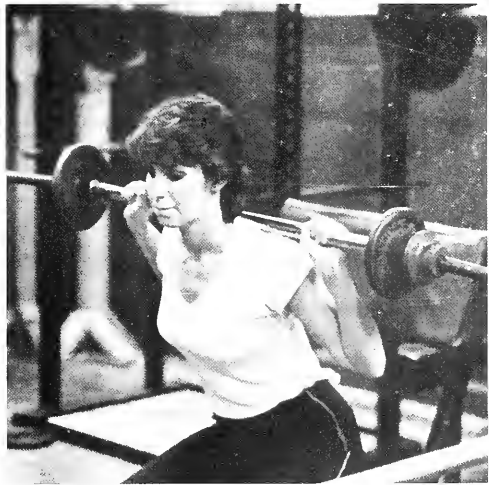

Junior Debbie Medsker and body building teacher Ms. Hollingsworth take time out for a little chat.

In freshman physical education fifth period, everyone participates in afternoon jumping jacks.

Senior Laura Wimes doesn't let a 175-pound leg press get in her way.

Using deep concentration, junior Lisa Myers succeeds in doing a squat with a 70-pound weight on her shoulder.

During girls' body building, junior Michele Metzger shows great determination using the lat pull exerciser.

Learning to use a compass is something Reggie Howard has found necessary for drafting.

Walter Kowalenko demonstrates his newly-acquired skills in woods class.

Getting Down to Basics

Hard to believe as it may be, many basic subjects fall under the categories of industrial arts and home economics. Here at EHS, we are proud to claim quite a variety of each. In the home economics department there are such classes as foods, clothing, needlecraft, human development, consumer action and housing. Under the heading of industrial arts comes woods, metals, power mechanics, and drafting.

While these classes may seem the mere basics to some, there are many who wouldn't know the first thing to do in such a course! Believe it or not, there are actually people at Elmhurst who couldn't bake a cake if you paid them. Also, many would not know the first step in cutting a piece of wood with a power saw. As we all know, there are quite a few students who haven't learned how to coordinate their clothing very well, either.

Today, with the high unemployment rates and all, people are learning to do many things by themselves. Ordinarily you might hire someone for a job that, with the right experience, would be very easy to do yourself. Many of us are learning to do things on our own, for the very first time. Taking some of these courses in high school could be profitable in the long run.

One of the main purposes of the industrial arts and home economics courses is to offer as wide a variety of learning experiences as possible. Now many of the classes have an equal number of males and females. During class the students draw, design their dream home, cook, file, sand, saw, invent and create — providing tangible evidence that industrial arts and home economics answer a real need at Elmhurst.

Geralyn Perez concentrates on wrapping up the cupcakes she just made in home economics.

Summer Weather Signals . . .
A Period of Recollection

Banding Together Means . . . EHS Spirit Soars!

After long hours of practice and short water breaks, both the Elmhurst athletic teams and music groups showed the city and the state that Elmhurst was still around and deserving of respect.

Such things as music competitions, All-SAC and All-Area team announcements, sectional championships, regional pairings and state competitions helped to make Elmhurst more noticed. EHS's repeated visits throughout the year to various championship games said more than words.

Though these happenings were just a part of the 1982-83 school year, many EHS students have fond memories stemming from the events. By banding together and uniting in the effort to excel, school spirit and confidence was given a shot in the arm — EHS was feared and most of all respected.

Boy, I wish I had a chair! Baseman Bill Derbyshire watches as his Elmhurst Trojans battle to defeat their foe, North Manchester.

She said, "I wish I had a chair!" Kerette, a cheerleader, helps herself to a seat on a bench in the locker room too soon.

Elmhurst High School takes the Bull by the horns. On Homecoming morning the Lucky Steer Bull "mysteriously" appeared on the front lawn of the school.

E.T. is home. Making a special appearance at the regional basketball game, E.T. watches the game intently.

Go get 'em tiger! Basketball coach Dan Wilson gives Tony Bates some words of encouragement while sending him out to battle the opposing team.

Oh please help me make it through this last school function! At commencement practice Monica Doran, Anna Litch and Diana Burry bow their heads for a moment of prayer.

The End for a Few . . .

A Sign of Perpetuity for Others

As "Pomp and Circumstance" echoed about the oval shape of the Fort Wayne Memorial Coliseum the graduates of the class of 1983 anticipated the end of their long journey through 13 years of schooling. But to Fort Wayne Community School administrators, faculty and a few members of the graduation audience the memories of previous commencements returned. To these people this was just another ceremony with a speech, but to the upperclassmen making their last appearance as Elmhurst students, it was very significant, and, most likely, would remain locked within their memories for the rest of their lives.

This, like many other happenings at Elmhurst, is routine . . . well, maybe not! Annual events loom as a sign of perpetuity to future enrollees of Elmhurst High — and no matter how routine these activities become to onlookers it's the individual personalities and accomplishments that set each graduating class apart. The perpetual motion of students inching their way through school . . . EHS students never again to be matched. Although the faces of students and faculty members change, Elmhurst is still Elmhurst! Day after day, banquet after banquet, graduation after graduation and year after year, Elmhurst remains.
